THIS WEEK IN REVIEW!

Heavens to Betsy what a week we have had here at GVA!
Our first summer camp of the season started this week and those young artists were amazing!

We even had one young lady who just wasn't that interested on Monday morning at the start but then she got to playing in the mud (clay) and she was hooked!

It is an amazing experience working with clay and these young people did a great job! Here is a picture of them with their finished work.

Still time for you to sign up your young artists for summer camps!

Space is limited so make sure to register quickly.

I have a summer intern this year by the name of Catherine Cansler.

I'll try to get here picture for you next week! Make sure to stop by and meet her.

And at the beginning of the week, a lovely couple, Miles and Katie, stopped in and chatted with me. They were in town for the week and wanted to volunteer. Of course, I said yes and between Catherine and Miles and Katie, this place looks so very different. They have organized the kitchen, both storage closets and (the big one) helped me with a major overhaul to the gift shop. You should see it! Why don't you come see the new gift shop Friday evening, June 23rd from 5:30 to 7:00 p.m. ? We are having an artist talk and closing reception for our current exhibit, "Life in the Abstract" and while you're here, you can shop our new gift shop! Here's a couple of preview pictures:

I still need to finish setting up the glass table and refocus some of the lighting to show off all the wonderful artwork we have for sale but other than that it is done! Couldn't have done without my amazing volunteer crew this week.

I have Miles and Katie one more day next week so hopefully we can get a picture of these two amazing people and show them off to you!

That's all I have for this week! Keep scrolling for more details on the cool things we have happening here! See you next week!
