

Meet Sherryl Merritt

CAMDR Provincial Advisor for the province of Ontario

Sherryl Merritt worked in healthcare in Quebec before moving to the University Health Network (UHN) in 2007 where she assumed an implant specialist role. It was not long before the opportunity to be clinical educator presented itself.

Sherryl became the educator for Central Processing (MDRD) at the Toronto Western site of University Health Network in 2008. In 2012, Sherryl became the manager of the (MDRD) where she is continuing to make new paths for the advancement of medical device reprocessing.

Sherryl is a graduate in leadership development of Rotman School of Management University of Toronto 2014. She is presently working on her MBA at University Of Cumbria.

Sherryl is passionate about patient safety and the advancement of sterile reprocessing. She is currently co-chair on the UHN Reusable Medical Device Committee; this committee addresses the challenges which the MDRD may experience with medical devices for cleaning and sterilization.
