If a unit owner or resident notices a violation, they should inform the property manager, and/or Board member(s), and/or the Security desk for verification.
  - b. For noise violations (e.g., loud music, dog barking), a sound recording of the noise may be taken by a designated person (or by the complaining homeowner/ resident) for the Association's records. If this is not possible, written confirmation of the noise should be obtained by TWO persons (i.e., the property manager, and/or members of the Board of Directors, and/or the security personnel).
- 4- Non-Owner Residents: All non-owner residents are required to abide by the rules and regulations of the Association and will be assessed fines if they fail to do so. Failure to comply with the rules and regulations, or excessive violations will result in non-approval of lease renewal. Unit owners are ultimately responsible for any unpaid fines incurred by their non-owner residents.
- 5- Violation Appeal Process: Residents are entitled to appeal a violation. Any appeal must be submitted to the Association in writing within fourteen (14) days after the infraction, or such longer period as may be prescribed by Florida's Condominium Act.
- 6- Failure to Pay a Fine: Failure to timely pay a fine will result in suspension of a unit owner's (and non-unit owner resident's and guest's) common element use rights. The Association may use a collection agency to collect past-due fines. The Association may prevent a unit owner from renting or selling a unit if such unit owner is delinquent in any payments owed to the Association.

REFERENCE

Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA)

The ADA prohibits discrimination on the basis of disability in employment, State and local government, public accommodations, commercial facilities, transportation, and telecommunications. It also applies to the United States Congress. To be protected by the ADA, one must have a disability or have a relationship or association with an individual with a disability. An individual with a disability is defined by the ADA as a person who has a physical or mental impairment that substantially limits one or more major life activities, a person who has a history or record of such an impairment, or a person who is perceived by others as having such an impairment. The ADA does not specifically name all of the impairments that are covered.

Fair Housing Act (FHA)

The Fair Housing Act requires owners of housing facilities to make reasonable exceptions in their policies and operations to afford people with disabilities equal housing opportunities. For example, a landlord with a "no pets" policy may be required to grant an exception to this rule and allow an individual who is blind to keep a guide dog in the residence. The Fair Housing Act also requires landlords to allow tenants with disabilities to make reasonable access-related modifications to their private living space, as well as to common use spaces. (The landlord is not required to pay for the changes.) The Act further requires that new multifamily housing with four or more units be designed and built to allow access for persons with disabilities. This includes accessible common use areas, doors that are wide enough for wheelchairs, kitchens and bathrooms that allow a person using a wheelchair to maneuver, and other adaptable features within the units. Even though residents have rights under the FHA, there are still situations in which a landlord, or Association, does not have to comply with this Federal law. These include:

- When the animal is too large for the accommodation (size and breed restrictions)
- Buildings that only have 4 (or less units) and the landlord lives in one of them
- Single family house that is rented without a real estate agent

Certified Service Animals (CSA) are dogs that are highly trained to do a specific task or service for the disabled person. The service can be anything from helping the person navigate through public places, to alerting them to an oncoming seizure or low blood sugar.

Emotional Support Animals (ESA) are animals that do not need any specialized training and are there to purely give comfort and love.
