Eucharistic Adoration and Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament (part two)

Prayers of a clearly Christocentric character should be publicly recited during exposition of the Blessed Sacrament. In their private prayers the faithful should remember that during exposition everything should be so arranged that the faithful can devote themselves attentively in prayer to Christ our Lord.

One ancient and venerable devotion that is intended to foster a devotion to and meditation on the mystery of the Passion of Christ is the Stations of the Cross. As commendable as this devotion is, it cannot easily be combined simultaneously with Eucharistic adoration, whose purpose is to draw the faithful more deeply into the mystery of Christ's presence in the Holy Eucharist in a time of stillness and recollection. Therefore, the Stations of the Cross, which traditionally requires physical movement between stations, should not be prayed during the exposition of the Eucharist. This does not mean that some form of meditation on the saving Passion of our Lord, such as readings from the Gospel accounts, cannot take place during Eucharistic Adoration, provided the prescriptions of the liturgical books are observed.

Before the Most Holy Sacrament is either reserved or exposed, the praying of the Rosary, which is admirable "in its simplicity and even its profundity", is not to be excluded, especially when the people request it. Even so, especially if there is Exposition, the character of this kind of prayer as a contemplation of the mysteries of the life of Christ the Redeemer and the Almighty Father's design of salvation should be emphasized, especially by making use of readings taken from Sacred Scripture.

Similarly, while prayers such as the Litany of the Saints and various novena prayers are laudable in themselves and certainly contribute to devotion and spiritual life, if such prayers are used during exposition, care should be taken to ensure the centrality and primacy of the Eucharist, which should not appear as somehow subordinate to other forms of prayer.
