

Magalie has been told many times, people remembering it with a knowing glance, that she was this little girl being bottle-fed during games' half-time.

Indeed, her mother was a basketball player, while her father was always hitting rugby pitches. She grew up with and through sport. Through its values.

And she built her professional life drawing on team spirit, taste for challenge, for effort and for staying the course.

Eleven years abroad made her strengthen the belief of differences being an empowerment in team building, and allowed her to deepen it into intercultural skills, along with nurturing her curiosity and her ability to move with challenges to find effective solutions. Those are essential features in her approach of project management, which she mostly puts to use in the sector of tourism, events, sports and culture & arts.

Organize teams, discipline schedules, synchronize energies, exploit potentials and evaluate possibilities. She somewhat feels like an orchestra conductor, who takes initiatives, harmonizes tonalities and directs towards solutions. Her experience is the result of a rich and varied international career of almost 15 years that led her to live in the USA, Italy, Monaco, Canada and Switzerland. With excellent proven organizational, planning and communication skills, with the PMP certification obtained in 2016, one can always rely on her sense of leadership, her energy, creativity and initiative.
