

Customized Training Classes Offered

EMERGENCY MEDICAL DEVICES offers live tissue training classes* in the use of UltraClot® and BallistiClot® products. These are geared toward operational medicine, for both medical and non-medical personnel.

Courses may be tailored to meet individual requirements.

Classes are conducted in approved field locations and classrooms, taught by highly qualified medical and military instructors experienced in combat casualty care.

Porcine combat wound models include transected femoral artery and actual ballistic wounds. Hemostasis is achieved using UltraClot® products administered by trainees. This allows the individual to gain critical hands-on experience in the proper application of these devices.
