Dear Ms. Brown,

Has Senator Henry really concluded that this is a "harmful practice . . ." based on medical or other evidence? I am a male. At the risk of TMI, I am circumcised and my parents didn't seek my counsel on the issue when I was infant. It was done as part of religious beliefs. Turns out that I've not entered counseling as a result of it and have no ill will toward my parents or my church. In fact, I think I've done reasonably well (have a family and all that) and didn't need the state's protection. I know lots of other males in similar situations.

Thank you.

Greg Lavelle
