What is a community foundation?

A community foundation is a collection of funds established by a wide range of donors. Each fund is a reflection of the charitable interests of the donor. There are more than 770 community foundations across the United States.

Who typically works with the Middletown Community Foundation?

The Foundation works with a wide variety of individuals, families, businesses and nonprofit organizations. How do I get my clients started?

Contact us at 513/424-7369 to speak to Executive Director, Duane Gordon or Development Officer, Elaine Garver. They can review the assets for gifting and the fund types that best suit your clients' charitable interests and financial situation. A client may establish a fund with a gift of $10,000 or more.

How will the Foundation invest the assets of a charitable fund?

We utilize the services of Fifth Third Bank as custodian of Foundation assets, and the Fund Evaluation Group as consultant to manage Foundation assets with a prudent and balanced investment allocation. As stewards of the community's endowment, donor's charitable legacies, and community investments, it is our responsibility to carefully manage these resources.

What are the Foundation's fees?

The Foundation's administrative fees are 1% of each component fund's assets. The Foundation's investment agent also charges fees that vary with the investment firm and the specific investment vehicles used by the investment agent.

How can the Foundation fit into my client's estate plans?

The Foundation will work closely with you and your clients to help facilitate planned gifts of all types (including bequests, trusts, charitable trusts, qualified retirement plans, life insurance policies, etc.) through your client's estate plans. This work may include the development of a letter of intent from the clients to the Foundation detailing how your clients would like the Foundation to use their planned gift when the Foundation receives the gift in the future.

Does the Foundation serve as trustee of charitable trusts?

No. The Foundation recommends that donors appoint a qualified bank or trust company or a qualified individual as trustee. Of course, the Foundation welcomes the opportunity to serve as the remainder beneficiary of a charitable remainder trust or the lead beneficiary of a charitable lead trust. We would be delighted to work with you and you clients to develop a letter of intent as to how such planned gifts will be used.

Why should I give to the Middletown Community Foundation rather than directly to the charitable organizations I want to support?

The Middletown Community Foundation has a unique role and distinct advantage over other charitable choices because of its permanence, flexibility, stewardship role, public accountability, and knowledge of and focus on serving the needs of our local communities. The Foundation has a thirty-seven year history of honoring the intent of its donors. Donors may be assured that our professional staff and dedicated board of community leaders are committed to honor donor intent and ensure that the donor's wishes are fulfilled long into the future. In addition, your clients may establish one named fund to support several charitable organizations through a current or planned gift and have the peace of mind that their intent is honored in perpetuity.
