

Sunday Meditation

“Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the children of God” (Matt. 5:9). This is the seventh beatitude. It may be significant that the sixth beatitude, the one before, is about purity of heart. For both purity and peacefulness are marks of heavenly wisdom. “But the wisdom that comes from heaven is first of all pure; then peace-loving, considerate, submissive, full of mercy and good fruit, impartial and sincere (James 3:17). Peace-making must not be a compromise with sin, toleration of evil, peace at any cost. It must be first pure, insisting on righteousness, but it should be “full of mercy” towards the sinner. The peacemaker should not be surprised, however, when his or her efforts at peacemaking are misrepresented, misunderstood and rebuffed. In such cases the eighth beatitude applies: “Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness’ sake: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven” (Matt. 5:10). All for Jesus, Richard
