Intelligence Newsletter

"And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." John 8:32.

May - June, 1996

The Bottom Line

"If you forsake the Lord, and serve strange gods, then he will turn and do you hurt, and consume you, after that he hath done you good...Now therefore put away, said he, the strange gods which are among you, and incline your heart unto the Lord God of Israel. (Jos 24:20-23)"

In past issues of the Intelligence Newsletter we have presented incidents of the great fight between two opposite forces. There are those of us who desire freedom and liberty under God and those who are coming dangerously close in reaching their goal of forcing the entire world into a totalitarian state and the worshipping of a strange god. This issue of the Intelligence Newsletter will be devoted to the spiritual aspects of this strange god and those who are supporting it. Obviously, we will be emphasizing the efforts within the United States because it has been paraphrased, "How goes the United States, so goes the world." The entire world, and all of the various peoples on the planet, are involved.

We have all read about, and studied, the current phenomena of the "Great War on the West" here in the United States. That battle continues and as Yogi Berra said, "It ain't over till the fat lady sings!" The main purpose of this issue is to show how important that war is to the final outcome. We intend also to show that, entirely through ignorance, many are unknowingly supporting the enemy by their actions all the while fighting him to the death!

In the March-April, 1996 issue of the Ecologic we find the article entitled "Green Religion: from the UN to your church."

"After more than five years of preparation, the National Religious Partnership for the Environment (NRPE) became a reality in September, 1993. By April, 1994, 'Education and Activity Kits' were being sent to 53,000 American Congregations reaching an estimated 100 million congregants. Throughout America, churches are being used to advance the global environmental and social agenda. Paul Gorman, NRPE's Executive Director says: 'Progress will be gradual and cumulative. But how people of faith engage the environmental crisis will have much to do with the future well-being of the planet, and in all likelihood, with the future of religious life as well.'

"Gorman is right. An examination of the belief system upon which the NRPE is constructed suggests that religious life throughout the world may well be at the brink of a transformation that dwarfs other religious milestones. The emergence of Buddha, Christ, and Mohammed are pivotal points in history for world religions. Constantine and Martin Luther are major milestones in the history of Christianity. All of these are but steps toward a new religious enlightenment now being proclaimed by the NRPE as a part of the global agenda that seeks to encompass all the world's religions into a new 'global ethic' the center of which is the protection, preservation, and even the worship of nature.

"The NRPE is located at 1047 Amsterdam Avenue in New York City. The Gaia Institute is located at the same address, as is the The Temple of Understanding. The building at this address is an enormous gothic cathedral, built in 1893, known as the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. The Dean of the Cathedral is the Very Reverend James P. Morton, who is also on the Board of Trustees of the NRPE, and President of the Temple of Understanding. The Temple of Understanding is an accredited NGO (non-governmental organization) to the United Nations. The Global Committee of Parliamentarians on Population and Development, funded by the United Nations Development Program, and the Temple of Understanding co-sponsored the Global Forum of Spiritual and Parliamentary Leaders for Human Survival in 1988. The featured speaker at the Forum was James Lovelock, author of The Ages of Gaia. Lovelock told the gathering that the earth-Gaia- 'is the source of life everlasting and is alive now; she gave birth to humankind and we are a part of her.'

Dr. Robert Muller

"The Temple of Understanding is directed by an international Board of Directors and Advisors. Among them are Dr. Robert Muller, who served as an Assistant Secretary General to three Secretary-Generals at the United Nations. He is now Chancellor of the UN University of Peace in Costa Rica and is the author of the World Core Curriculum used by UNESCO and other UN programs, and is the foundation for 'Goals 2000' also known as 'Outcome Based Education (OBE)' in America. Muller's book, New Genesis: Shaping a Global Spirituality prompted the Temple of Understanding to convene a meeting of world religious leaders on Mount Sinai in October, 1984. In a 1995 interview with the World Goodwill Newsletter, Muller said: 'The UN is humanity's incipient global brain, and it is part of its global nervous system (media, NGO's, etc.). We still need a global heart...and we still need a global soul, namely our consciousness and fusion with the entire universe and stream of time.' What Muller means is clarified in another speech delivered to World Goodwill. Muller says: 'We are temporary living manifestations or incarnations of this earth. We are the living earth. Each of us is a cell, a perceptive nervous unit of the earth. The living consciousness of earth is beginning to operate through us.'

" 'You as cosmic and earth cells, are part of a vast biological and evolutionary phenomenon which is of first importance at this stage, namely humanity as a whole, the whole human species, has become the brain, the heart, the soul, the expression and the action of the earth. We now have a world brain, which determines what can be dangerous of mortal for the planet: the United Nations and its agencies, and innumerable groups and networks around the world, are a part of this brain. This is our newly discovered meaning. We are a global family living in a global home. We are in the process of becoming a global civilization.'

"As Robert Muller defines the emerging world religion in terms of the gaia hypothesis applied to the United Nations, The Reverend Thomas Berry defines the theology. Berry is, perhaps, the leading evangelist for the gaia hypothesis and the 'earth ethic' the hypothesis has spawned. The Wanderer Forum Quarterly says: 'Father Thomas Berry, C.P. claims that it is now time for the most significant change that Christian spirituality has yet experienced. This change is part of a much more comprehensive change in human consciousness brought about by the discovery of the evolutionary story of the universe. In speaking about a new cosmology he reminds us that we are the earth come to consciousness and, therefore, we are connected to the whole living community-that is, all people, animals, plants and the living organism of planet earth itself.'

"According to The Florida Catholic (February 14, 1992), Berry says: 'We must rethink our ideas about God; we should place less emphasis on Christ as a person and redeemer. We should put the Bible away for 20 years while we radically rethink our religious ideas. What is needed is the change from an exploitative anthropocentrism to a participative biocentrism. This change requires something more than environmentalism.' Berry is an editorial advisor to Creation magazine, which says: '...the world is being called to a new post-denominational, even a post-Christian belief system that sees the earth as a living being, mythologically, as Gaia, Mother Earth, with mankind as her consciousness. Such worship of the universe is properly called cosmolatry.'

"Lovelock, Muller, and Berry are convinced that the gaia hypothesis is the inescapable, universal truth which has been distorted and forgotten by the human species. Only now, with the emergence of the gaia hypothesis, is the world beginning to rediscover the truth so easily recognized by the ancient mystics, shaman, and pagan worshipers of the past. Berry says that 'This new period in history might be called the Ecozoic era. It requires that we return to the mythic origins of the scientific venture. We feel the scientists must participate to some extent in shamanic powers. We might say that the next phase of scientific development will require above all the insight of shamanic powers.'

"While James Lovelock is generally credited with originating the gaia hypothesis, Anodea Judith says that the concept was first published several years before Lovelock's book, in a publication called Green Egg in an article entitled Theagenesis: The Birth of the Goddess (Vol V, No. 40), by Otter Zell. It is significant because the publication describes itself to be 'The official journal of the Church of All Worlds, whose mission is to evolve a network of information, mythology and experience that provides a context and stimulus for reawakening Gaia, and reuniting Her children through tribal community dedicated to responsible stewardship.'

"In a Green Egg editorial, entitled On the Occasion of Bill & Al's Excellent Election, Otter Zell writes: 'We are neo-pagans- implying an eclectic reconstruction of ancient Nature religions, and combining archetypes of many cultures with other mystic and spiritual disciplines-and our beliefs and values are no different from those you describe as your own. We ask no special favors; we wish nothing more than that you be true to yourself, and to your own values and ideals as expressed in Earth in the Balance. Know that there are half a million American NeoPagas out here who support you, who voted for you, and who will rally to the aid of your policies for the salvation of the Earth and the reunification of the Great Family.'

"Judith further explains the gaia hypothesis in language similar to Muller and Berry. She says: 'The basic evolutionary pattern in biological organisms is movement toward greater consciousness. When all parts of Gaia recognize each other as participants in parallel growth heading for an Omega point of coalescence and integrative harmony, then the global consciousness of this planet will have awakened to a realization of identity as a global being. Gaia's evolutionary thrust is reflected in the spiritual goals of self-realization that comes from acceptance of the gaia hypothesis as the reason why human behavior must be modified to protect, preserve, and even worship the earth goddess-gaia.'

"Herein lies a glimpse of the belief system that initiated the National Religious Partnership for the Environment (NRPE). These beliefs are not held in a vacuum. The entire program of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine is devoted to 'sacred ecology.' The cathedral is visited by 750,000 people each year who see an 'Earth Shrine', which includes a 25-foot high wall planted with forest flora-bromeliads, orchids, ferns, mosses, and aquatic plants-from rain forests, and blue crabs, striped bass, mussels and an assortment of other animals from New York's estuaries and wetlands. Morton, Dean of the Cathedral, says the Earth Shrine Habitat is a symbol of ecotheology. The Amicus Journal (Winter, 1993) says: 'Morton shares Berry's belief that an ecological interpretation of the cosmos requires a corresponding reinterpretation of the story of creation. The new scientific evidence about the origins of life made me realize that we could no longer deal with the human story as something apart from the life story, or the earth story, or the universe story.'

"Shortly after the Global Forum, Morton launched what was called the Joint Appeal on Religion and Science for the Environment. Then-Senators Al Gore and Timothy Wirth orchestrated a bipartisan Congressional gathering to enlist support for the Joint Appeal. Bolstered by their reception in Washington, Paul Gorman, then Public Affairs Director at the Cathedral, recruited well-known scientist Carl Sagan, to invite other prestigious scientists to meet with prestigious religious leaders invited by Morton. They met at the Cathedral in 1991. Another meeting was scheduled in Washington at which 75 religious leaders and 50 scientists (including Paul Ehrlich and Sherwood Rowland) presented their concerns along with a letter of support signed by the leaders of eleven major environmental organizations including the National Audubon Society, the Natural Resources Defense Council, the Sierra Club, the Environmental Defense Fund, and the World Resources Institute.

"Al Gore not only facilitated the Washington meetings and provided special private meetings with Congressional leadership, he also delivered the sermon at the Cathedral's annual celebration of St. Francis. The service featured the Blessing of the Animals. Among the animals led down the aisle to be blessed at the altar was an elephant, llama, camel, a python so large that two men had to carry it, birds, algae (brought by Paul Mankiewicz, Director of the Gaia Institute), and a bowl full of worms and compost. In his sermon, Al Gore declared that God is not separate from the earth.

"With a full-time staff of 12, a firm written agreement which binds four of the nations leading religious organizations (U.S. Catholic Conference; National Council of Churches of Christ; Coalition on the Environment and Jewish Life; and the Evangelical Environmental Network), and five million dollars supplied by the nations most prestigious foundations, and the blessings of the Vice President of the United States, and the nation's most prestigious scientists, the National Religious Partnership for the Environment has begun spreading its belief system and its social agenda through the churches in America.

"The NRPE is not content to simply preach its gospel and welcome converts who come voluntarily; their mission is to promote a social agenda which will result in public policies that force people to live by their tenets. In June, 1994, 40 NRPE-affiliated staffers met with 25 senior White House officials (including the Vice President, Secretary Bruce Babbitt, EPA Administrator Carol Browner, and Under Secretary of State, Tim Wirth) to begin an ongoing process of dialogue and appropriate collaboration. The NRPE provides policy updates and action alerts to participating congregations.

"Amy Elizabeth Fox, Associate Director of the NRPE, says: 'We are required by our religious principles to look for the links between equity and ecology. The fundamental emphasis is on issues of environmental justice, including air pollution and global warming; water, food and agriculture; population and consumption; hunger, trade and industrial policy; community economic development; toxic pollution and hazardous waste; and corporate responsibility.'

"The social agenda of the NRPE is, in fact, the global environmental agenda as set forth in the Rio Declaration and reflected in the Convention of Climate Change, the Convention on Biological Diversity, the President's Council on Sustainable Development, the recommendations of the Commission on Global Governance, and virtually all of the other UN-initiated documents that are impacting America. The entire agenda has been developed by those people who have experienced the so-called 'enlightenment', which occurs upon acceptance of the gaia hypothesis as the universal truth that transcends all other religious beliefs. The NRPE seeks to convince its religious partners to modify their belief systems to embrace gaia. Individual members of congregations who truly convert will not mind modifying their behavior to conform to the requirements of the new 'earth ethic.' THOSE WHO DO NOT VOLUNTARILY CONVERT, WILL BE CONSTRAINED BY NEW LAWS, REGULATIONS, AND INTERNATIONAL AGREEMENTS." End of article. We in the Christian Crusade for Truth believe that the contents of that article reveal the relationship between a significant portion of the Judeo-Christian community, Congressional leadership, Executive Department leadership and corporate leadership. Theoretically, funding for this venture comes from: The Bauman Foundation; Peter and Mimi Buckley; The Nathan Cummings Foundation; The Ford Foundation; The W. Alton Jones Foundation; The Joyce Mertz-Gilmore Foundation; The Moriah Foundation; The C.S. Mott Foundation; The New World Foundation; The Jessie Smith Noyes Foundation; The Pew Charitable Trusts; Stephen C. Rockefeller; The Surdna Foundation; and the Turner Foundation. In all probability, the largest recipients of their funds will have many congressmen and senators for their re-election coffers.

We can also see that the enormous influence of those who believe in this new god has reached the Executive Branch in the name of Vice-President Albert Gore. To establish that fact we need only to quote from several well-known authors' articles regarding the new-age, occultic, pantheistic, un-Christian beliefs of Mr. Gore:

Dr. Robert H. Goldsborough of The American Research Foundation writes, "Gore, in his book Earth in the Balance...writes that, 'Nature in its fullest is God.' In a further slap at Christianity, he applauds Buddhism, Hinduism, Shamanism, and mother earth spirit worship. Gore writes, 'Vast Earth the Mother of all...fondling all creation in her lap.' This is strange Pantheistic theology...In a theological stance typical of the New Age, he says every man is God! Gore is a fuzzy left-wing extremist."

Dr. Charles A. Provan of the American Freedom Movement, writes, "In his book, Gore endorses Eastern and Mystery religions, the worship of the ancient goddess, Hinduism, Buddhism, and Islam. But he blasts Christians who he says, 'are afraid to open their minds to teachings first offered outside their own system of belief.' Gore dislikes fundamental Christians who truly believe the Bible. He says that because Christians refuse to believe that the earth is our sacred mother, that Christians are a threat to the survival of humanity. He calls Christians a blight on the environment. He also states that to believe in Bible prophecy is unforgivable. He said, 'Not only is this idea heretical, it is an appalling self-fulfilling prophecy of doom.' Gore says he is friendly with the Dalai Lama, the Tibetan Buddhist who claims to be a reincarnated god on earth. Gore is a favorite speaker at New Age conferences and last year he spoke on the environment and spirituality for 'Common Boundary,' a globalist New Age group. Other speakers at the seminar promoted witchcraft and goddess themes. He will be a real strong force for massive environmental controls and severe on violators of his regulations."

In his book Global Tyranny.. The United Nations and the Emerging New World Order, author William F. Jasper writes, "The Rio Earth Summit- A prime example of this dangerous lunacy could be found at the June 1992 UN Earth Summit in Brazil, where both the official United Nations Conference on Environment and Development (UNCED) program and the Global Forum 'peoples' summit' featured a melding of pagan aboriginal rites, eco-babble, and an ecumenical hodgepodge of spiritual tenets from East and West to form an incoherent universal faith."

"Senator Al Gore, who led the U.S. Senate delegation to Rio, reiterated his call for a new spiritual relationship between man and earth. Shirley MacLaine dropped in to lend the nutty ramblings of her psychic spirituality to the conference. A centerpiece of the Global Forum opening ceremony was the Viking ship Gaia, named for the Greek goddess of earth. At the culmination of that program, a group calling itself the 'Sacred Drums of the Earth' struck up a solemn cadence. The ceremony program said that the drummers would 'maintain a continuous heartbeat near the official site of the Earth Summit, as part of a ritual for the healing of our Earth to be felt by those who are deciding Earth's fate.' The Forum ceremony closed, appropriately, with Jamaican reggae singer Jimmy Cliff performing the song, 'The Rivers of Babylon.' On the eve of the opening of UNCED, a midnight-to-dawn homage to the 'Female Planet' was held on Leme Beach. After dancing all night, the worshipers followed a Brazilian tribal high priestess to the water's edge where they offered flowers and fruits to 'Iemanje, mae orixa, mother of the powers, queen of the seas,' and then invoked the blessings of the sea goddess upon the summit's deliberations."

"The Union for Natural Environment Protection, an environmental group based in Sao Leopoldo, Brazil, declared the following about the work of the summit: 'A world-wide citizens' movement is born around the UN system and will be in the years ahead a central focal point for the New World Order which Alice Bailey wrote about many decades ago and which is going to be politically free, socially fair, economically efficient and environmentally sustainable.' That pretty well ties it all together: the UN, Alice Bailey's New Age religion, the new world order, and environmentalism."

"True, there were also 'Christian' participants in the summit celebrations. Ministers from the World Council of Churches and Catholic clerics such as Dom Helder Camara (known as Brazil's Red Archbishop because of his blatantly pro-communist sympathies) could be found amidst the cymbal-clanging Hare Krishnas, diapered swamis, saffron-robed gurus, and witch doctors in loincloths. But they were there because of their affinity for an ecumenical 'spirit' that promotes an anti-Christian and syncretistic blend of Christianity and paganism."

That should be show that the Vice President is deeply involved in this spiritual warfare against, not only Christianity itself but the United States as a Christian nation. However, there is more regarding the Clinton-Gore White House relative to the now famous War on the West!

Although the use of the term "Environmentalism" has been used for many years now as a tool to create the New World Order, it has been during the Clinton Administration that the greatest gains have been realized using treaties, laws and regulations imposed upon the American people to further their cause. To this end the current administration has used liberals, socialists and communists wherever they find them.

If you will recall, President Clinton immediately after he took office created the national scandal of allowing homosexuals to remain in the military. That was the "reward" to that sizable community for helping to secure the election for Clinton and Gore. Their campaign was in serious trouble because of the national outrage over Clinton's draft dodging during the Vietnam War. The homosexual community is extremely well financed (by whom?) and they represent a considerable political power base. The entire world knows of Clinton's proclivities so it would be only natural that he came out in support of their agenda.

The New York Times published an article by a White House employee named Paul Cellupica, titled "The Political Dawn Arrives for Gays." He wrote, "Like every other gay man and lesbian I know, and millions of gay men and lesbians...I did not vote for George Bush but rather for Gov. Bill Clinton. Many of my gay friends, young people in their 20's who might otherwise be apolitical as most of their straight contemporaries, registered to vote for the first time. The Human Rights Campaign Fund, a national gay political-action organization, estimates that more than $3 million in gay political contributions were channeled to the Clinton campaign by various routes."

Gore was involved in this manipulation also. He organized a party after the election and invited 150 leaders in the homosexual community. It is reported that he made this statement: "It's a wonderful thing to do what you're doing, and that's devoting your lives to others. This dedication is an outgrowth of the way you live your lives."

So what are the results of an administration that was wrought with these beliefs as it pertains to the ongoing environmental war against the entire globe?

There are more than 126 intergovernmental organizations, which are incessantly building a global bureaucracy to further the cause of the global agenda. Thousands of NCO's are continuing to develop the world-wide program which is devastating the ranching, timber, mining and farming communities here in the United States. These nongovernmental organizations have direct access to the United Nations. As was shown in the article by Ecologic, the St. John the Divine church in New York is one of those organizations. They are funded by foundations along with the Federal Government.

The treaty on Biological Diversity did not pass the Senate in 1994 but this has not stopped these eco-terrorists. For example, the Wildlands Project implementation is still being pursued without lawful support. This is being done within what they call the Ecosystem Management Policy and it is a part of UNESCO's Man and the Biosphere Program and the World Heritage Treaty. The United States is a party to that treaty. Those in Nevada who are now feeling the sting of the desertification of their farmlands by the federal government should realize that it, too, is being accomplished without the ratification of the UN's Desertification Treaty.

There is a United Nations Commission on Population and Development, which encompasses a Commission on Sustainable Development. In this agenda for the One World Order there is an ongoing effort to develop treaties on environmental justice, population control, education and a legal standing for these non- governmental organizations (NGO's) which up to now have no legal standing within the United Nations. Also, there is a strong effort to develop treaties for behavior modification. This will be discussed in detail later in this issue.

There is also a Convention on Climate Change. To develop the need for such a convention there should be some evidence that such is occurring. This is most interesting because there appears definitely to be a climate change as evidenced here in the United States with the abnormally wet and flooded Northern and Eastern parts of this country while at the same time there is a prolonged drought in the Western states that is determined by many to be the worst on record. Other parts of the world are experiencing the same malady. One way to secure that need for such a convention is to artificially induce weather modification. Is there such a thing? There will also be more on that later.

There is also the Global Forum for Spiritual Leaders and Parliamentarians for Human Survival. That is being chaired by the Temple of Understanding which is an official U.N. consultant. That was discussed in detail in the article by Ecologic.

There is a U.N. Commission on Global Governance. That commission is proposing global taxation, which we will all have to pay. There is an effort to repeal the veto power of the United States. Apparently, nothing is contemplated for the veto power of Russia. There is to be a new International Criminal Court, which undoubtedly will be for those who oppose the world order.

These are but a few of the activities being accomplished by the eco-freaks. It is reiterated, the National Religious Partnership for the Environment (NRPE) is a very strong partner in this ongoing effort and they are utilizing the networking power and the convincing sermons that are emanating from 53,000 churches in America. Some of the very people who are involved in this great war can perhaps be influenced by those churches. Be careful!

What about their proposed treaties for behavior modification? That is already being done on a grand scale, treaty or no treaty. Perhaps such a treaty is to legalize an effort that has been perfected and used within law enforcement, the military, the legislatures, the schools, etc. Efforts have proceeded for many years using different techniques such as electrical pulses, magnetic wave form pulses, hypnotic suggestion and the ultimate and final lobotomy (brain) modification. Another technique has emerged, called trauma-based programming.

According to Mr. Walter Boward, associated with the Freedom of Thought Foundation, P.O. Box 35072, Tucson, AZ 85740, the trauma-based behavioral modification has been successfully used on over one million Americans. In a recent interview with Mr. Boward, he revealed some interesting and important points about trauma-based programming that perhaps relates to the war on American sovereignty by the U.N. dominated environmentalists. That interview can be read in the May 20, 1996 issue of the weekly Spotlight newspaper, 300 Independence Ave. SE, Washington, D.C. 20003.

Mr. Boward states that the results of this trauma-based programming is an immensely improved memory, including a photographic memory. This is called hypermnesia. He states that if a child under the age of three is abused severely, they disassociate by mentally and emotionally escaping the situation by assuming alternate or multiple personalities. There is the possibility that the majority of such children will completely withdraw from the outside world and we continually see many such children. However, the more intelligent children will dissociate brilliantly in such a manner that hypermnesia takes place and they acquire multiple personalities. These are the children who are used to further the programs of the one world order.

The selected children are then further programmed by anchoring the various personalities by simple touch or cue words. They are now prepared to be used as couriers, intelligence agents, drug smugglers, assassins, sex slaves, and in the case of the environmentalist's attacks on the sovereignty of this nation, respond to their handlers as needed.

Apparently Mr. Boward himself was the object of such trauma-based programming. He states this, according to the article in the Spotlight. "President Clinton is trained by the guy who trained me. I don't think President Clinton is well trained, though. But I believe Vice President Al Gore is better trained at neural-linguistics programming." If that is true we should have a better understanding of the entire agenda of the current administration with our current interest here in the use of the environment question to further a one world government.

This could also give an insight into the many assassinations of recent years. Maybe this gives us a better understanding of the actions of law enforcement at Waco and Ruby Ridge as well as the multitude of unnecessarily brutal attacks on private citizens by law enforcement personnel.

Do these ongoing efforts in behavior modifications include the work being done in the Temple of Understanding and the Gaia Institute at the Cathedral of St. John? We do not know the methodology being used by the National Religious Partnership for the Environment (NRPE) to convince 53,000 Christian congregations to become active in the Gaia concept of "mother earth." Is it the same technique as was used on Vice President Gore called neural-linguistics programming?

Are the proposed treaties on weather modification redundant? Is the weather actually being controlled now? Is there already a treaty in force, which regulates the manner in which such weather modification is accomplished?

The United States is currently realizing tremendous changes in the weather patterns which have caused concern for our basic food reserves. Over the past several years there have been record floods in the midwest which have disrupted large sections of the farm land. Farmers have gone bankrupt. Crops could not be planted because of too much water or the temperature too cold. Crops could not be harvested even when, in those areas where a crop was established, because of unseasonable late rains. Large sections of farm land have experienced the worst drought since the "dust- bowl" days. We who are old enough remember the tremendous economic impact on the nation that it caused. It has been reported that the current wheat crop will probably be at the level of that in 1940 and we had 100 million less people then to feed.

The entire Southwestern part of the country has been in a drought which is classified by many observers to be the worst on record. This has forced many of the ranchers to dump their entire herds onto the market. This has caused a glut on the market, which of course, will be reduced through consumption in the near future. However, with few replacement cattle to refill the herds in the largest beef producing region of the United States, what will that do to the availability of beef for the consumer in the foreseeable future? Add that to the so-called "Mad Cow Disease" of England which further reduces the cattle numbers, there is potentially a serious problem on the horizon. With feed grains at an all-time low because of the drought, there is concern among those who evaluate the nation's food supply.

We know that weather modification is technically possible and has been demonstrated world-wide. One of the more important findings of Nicola Tesla was technique of modifying the weather through extra-low frequency pulses of magnetic energy. He demonstrated this phenomena at his laboratories in Colorado. Another phenomena he demonstrated was the ability to create earthquakes which is a corollary to his weather modification technique.

According to the book Angels Don't Play this HAARP, there is currently considerable weather modification being accomplished with the High Altitude Atmospheric Research Project (HAARP). The equipment is primarily located in Alaska and appears to affect the high altitude jet streams. It is known that the high altitude winds known as the jet streams are the driving force to move weather patterns. Obviously, if the jet streams can be manipulated to the desired positions, then the weather can be manipulated likewise.

What is the political advantage of such a technique? Weather is a weapon. All wars are fought in a manner, which considers the weather for the operation. If an enemy is weakened because of an abnormally bad weather pattern, it is used as an advantage to a would-be conquering force. If weather patterns can be manipulated, the technique becomes a weapon of a magnitude even more powerful than the nuclear bomb.

It has already been conceded that the world-wide environmentalists are at war with the people of the United States. This becomes obvious when you consider all of the extremely adverse and harsh actions of the environmentalists against the people of this country. That certainly includes all of the United States Government's agencies that are acting in concert with these eco-freaks. What is their objective? If the United States is to be reduced to a third-world status, it certainly would be to their advantage to reduce our capability to produce food in such abundance as we do now by causing farmers and ranchers to go bankrupt and move to the cities. They reason that such countries as Mexico and those of South America can provide us our food. We are to be a nation of "information and services" according to Zbigniew Brzezinski in his book, Between Two Ages.

For those who insist that there are no weather modification programs in existence, why do we already have a treaty regarding the manner in which we conduct them? Under the title United States Treaties and Other International Agreements, Volume 26, Part 1, dated 1975, we find this: "Agreement Between the United States of America and Canada Relating to the Exchange of Information on Weather Modification Activities."

"The Government of the United States of America and the Government of Canada, aware, because of their geographic proximity, that the effects of weather modification activities carried out by either Party or its nationals may affect the territory of the other; Noting the diversity of weather modification activities in both the United States and Canada by private parties, by State and Provincial authorities, and by the Federal Governments; Believing that the existing state of knowledge warrants the expectation of further development over a period of time in the science and technology of weather modification; Taking into particular consideration the special traditions of prior notification and consultation and the close cooperation that have historically characterized their relations; Believing that a prompt exchange of pertinent information regarding the nature and extent of weather modification activities of mutual interest may facilitate the development of the technology of weather modification for their mutual benefit; Recognizing the desirability of the development of international law relating to weather modification activities having transboundary effects; Have agreed as follows:

"Article I As used in this Agreement: (a) 'Weather modification activities,' means activities performed with the intention of producing artificial changes in the composition, behaviour, or dynamics of the atmosphere; (b) 'Weather modification activities of mutual interest' means weather modification activities carried out in or over the territory of a Party within 200 miles of the international boundary; or such activities wherever conducted, which, in the judgment of a Party, may significantly affect the composition, behaviour, or dynamics of the atmosphere over the territory of the other Party; (c)

That was the treaty between the United States and Canada. Following that action, a more general treaty was made under the auspices of the United Nations. Thus, we now can consider the matter as potentially a part of the ongoing effort to use the environment as a weapon to destroy this nation.

Under the title United States Treaties and Other International Agreements, Volume 31, Part 1 dated 1979, we find this: "MULTILATERAL." Prohibition of Military or Any Other Hostile Use of Environmental Modification Techniques. Convention done at Geneva May 18, 1977: Ratification advised by the Senate of the United States of America November 28, 1979; Ratified by the President of the United States of America December 13, 1979; Ratification of the United States of America deposited with the Secretary-General of the United Nations January 17, 1980; Proclaimed by the President of the United States of America February 12, 1980; Entered into force with respect to the United States of America January 17, 1980."

"Desiring also to contribute to the strengthening of trust among nations and to further improvement of the international situation in accordance with the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations, Have agreed as follows:

"Article I. 1. Each State Party of this Convention undertakes not to engage in military or any other hostile use of environmental modification techniques having widespread, long-lasting or severe effects as the means of destruction, damage or injury to any other State Party.

"2. Each State Party to this Convention undertakes not to assist, encourage or induce any State, group of States or international organization to engage in activities contrary to the provisions of paragraph 1 of this article.

"Article II. As used in article I, the term `environmental modification techniques' refers to any technique for changing, through the deliberate manipulation of natural processes, the dynamics, composition or structure of the Earth, including its biota, lithosphere, hydrosphere and atmosphere, or of outer space.

"Article III. 1. The provisions of this Convention shall not hinder the use of environmental modification techniques for peaceful purposes and shall be without prejudice to the generally recognized principles and applicable rules of international law concerning such use."

The treaty is quite long but that is enough of it to understand its purpose. As we can read in Article III, the use of weather modification techniques for "peaceful purposes" is not included. The citizens of North America, both Canada and the United States, can be easily convinced that those who are attempting to clean up our environment are doing it in the name of peace. Isn't that what the National Religious Partnership for the Environment (NRPE) is for? What better way than to convince 53,000 congregations that all of this is for their own good! Just to make sure that there will be no action taken against foreign environmentalists who are now here in the United States, we have a Presidential Executive Order number 12986, dated January 18, 1996, which reads as follows:

"International Union for Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources. By virtue of the authority vested in me as President by the Constitution and the laws of the United States, including sections 1 and 14 of the International Organizations Immunities Act (22 U.S. C. 288 et seq., as amended by section 426 of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 1994 and 1995, Public Law 103-236), I hereby extend to the International Union for Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources the privileges and immunities that provide or pertain to immunity from suit. To this effect, the following sections of the International Organizations Immunities Act shall not apply to the International Union for Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources:

"Section 2(b), 22 U.S.C. 288a(b), that provides international organizations and their property and assets with the same immunity from suit and judicial process as is enjoyed by foreign governments.

"Section 2(c), 22 U.S.C. 288a(c), that provides that the property and assets of international organizations shall be immune from search and confiscation and that their archives shall be inviolable.

"Section 7(b), 22 U.S.C. 288db), that provides the representatives of foreign governments in or to international organizations and the officers and employees of such organizations with immunity from suit and legal process relating to acts performed by them in their official capacity and falling within their functions.

"This designation is not intended to abridge in any respect privileges, exemptions, or immunities that the International Union Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources may have acquired or may acquire by international agreements or by congressional action.

Signed by William J. Clinton, January 18, 1996.

After a three-day evaluation a United Nations delegation to Yellowstone National Park declared the park to be "in danger" by environmental pollution. They have proposed that 18.2 million acres around Yellowstone be set aside as a buffer zone to protect the environment of the park. Thus, no mines or any other activities would be allowed in that zone (which probably includes ranching and logging). This has the people of Montana not only worried but furious. Senator Alan K. Simpson of Wyoming calls the international delegation's role "a terrible intrusion." However, the Senate ratified the World Heritage Treaty in 1972 and requesting Yellowstone's designation as a World Heritage site in 1978, the United States pledged to manage the park according to treaty requirements, according to the U.N. committee.

So, the bottom line is that the people of the United States are in the middle of a revolution, the final result of which is to determine the sovereignty of this once great Christian Republic.

As the District Attorney, Jim Catron of Catron County, New Mexico says, "...The final mopping up of the ancient Celtic resistance to central government is now taking place in the rural West of the United States of America. After their 3000 year struggle for local control, local self-government, is lifeless, then perhaps there will be an international wake for the long-sought, hard-fought destruction of the Goidel, Gael, Gallic, Galation, Keltoi, Celtic, Welsh, Scots, Irish, mining, logging, ranching, redneck culture...

"So all you enemies of freedom, plan the wake, and make it a loud and happy one, but, like the corpse in the Irish folk song, 'Tim Finnigan's Wake,' they ain't quite dead.

"See, the old Greek was right; if you can tame them, they can be educated. They have educated themselves, they know themselves, and their history. They know their customs and their culture, and they know the laws of the centralizers. They have learned the strategies and tactics of their enemies, and they are turning the tables on the New Romans.

"Across the world and across the millennia, the Celtic peoples have kept alive the dream of local self-government, free from centralized empires. Goidel Go Brae! Long Live the Celt!"
