

La Belle Au Bois Dormant the Sleeping Beauty

~performed by CATS DANCE~

Come join us in a magical land of dance and drama filled with magical fairies, flying monkeys & dancing princesses. Help the Lilac Fairy conquer Maleficent!

Many ballets have an Overture, which is music that plays before the curtain open. The overture introduces the musical themes in a ballet.

In Sleeping Beauty, the first musical theme we hear is the stormy music of evil. Maleficent is angry on her mountain! Tell your mom and dad to not be too scared!

The evil flying monkeys are awake! They soar through the sky, menacing everyone who sees them! Color them scary!

The nex theme we hear is the theme of the fairies, led by Lilac Fairy, the Queen of the Fairies... Join Christine, who dances the Lilac Fairy, in her dance! Use your magic to spread goodness in the face of evil.

The Fairy of the Enchanted Garden, danced by Gwen, gives baby Aurora the gift of beauty, so she would be as beautiful as a flower. Beautiful in her face, but also in her heart. Gwen is wearing pink, like a pink petaled rose.

The Fairy of the Woodland Glade, danced by Averill, gives baby Aurora the gift of dance and grace so she could dance through life as gracefully as a leaf in the wind. Averill is dressed in pale blue like the color of the wind and sky.

The Fairy of the Songbirds, danced by Juliet, gives Aurora the gift of song and music so she could sing and play music as beautifully as the birds. Juliet is dressed in yellow, like a canary.

The Fairy of the Golden Vine, danced by Madeline, gives Aurora the gift of wit and vitality, so that she will always be happy and make others happy too.

Here is another Fairy...
What should be her name? What gift should she give the baby Aurora?
What color should she wear?
Can You dance her part for me?