SUMMARY: Native wild birds and wild mammals need captive wildlife permit. US and state endangered/threatened species and nongame in need of conservation are banned under such permit. Many native reptiles and amphibians are legal and can be wild-caught. All felines, skunks, raccoons, and wolves are banned along with some invasive species. Other exotics are legal without permit but many are banned for import unless on an approved list, and therefore, must come from a captive legal in-state source.

Import: Fish, amphibians, reptiles and invertebrates are NOT regulated by the Department of Agriculture import laws.

DISCLAIMERS:

* The laws listed above lists whether a species to legal to possess and import according to state laws and then any federally protected species with stricter regulations than the state. Be sure to review all federal laws as some ban certain species as pets or make it legal to possess a species but bans their interstate import in commerce or purchasing across state lines (you can still move with your animals across state lines).

*For states that do allow keeping wild-caught native species as pets, it is usually limited to game birds, game animals, furbearers, reptiles, amphibians and invertebrates. Such taking usually requires some type of hunting or fishing license in addition to any required captive wildlife permits. All laws must be followed, including daily bag and possession limits, seasons, size limits and location specific regulations.

* These guides are usually based on state fish & game laws, state agriculture and health import laws, and marine resource laws except when otherwise noted. Check laws for all requirements. Additional state laws may apply, including general animal control and care, livestock, and other health laws.

* Species lists vary on each state page depending on each state's law. While we try to include as many native vertebrate species as possible, we cannot guarantee that all species are covered above.
