The Remote Cabin Restaurant In Louisiana That Serves Up The Most Delicious Food

Nestled against the Kincaid Lake just outside of Alexandria lies a remote cabin restaurant that serves up some of the most delicious food around. They've been a local favorite for 40 years, and they're certainly worth a road trip. Let's take a closer look.

Tucked away on the banks of the Kincaid Lake lies a charming little restaurant you're sure to love.

After nine long months of construction, Tunk's Cypress Inn opened in 1978 to much praise.

E.A. "Tunk" Andries, Jr. wanted to create a place where anyone could come to relax and feel comfortable with their family. He wanted to open a restaurant where people could enjoy a meal at a reasonable price, without sacrificing quality - and he did just that.

The rustic atmosphere is perfectly complemented by the stunning views of Kincaid Lake.

For a truly memorable meal, take advantage of their outdoor seating and enjoy the delightful views.

The menu features traditional Louisiana cuisine that they've put their own unique spin on.

Their house specials include mouthwatering dishes like alligator parmesan, crawfish fettuccine, grilled quail, and many others.

No matter what you're craving, you'll find something you're sure to love at Tunk's Cypress Inn.

Tunk's Cypress Inn is located in Boyce, which is just west of Alexandria. Their address is 9507 Hwy. 28, Boyce, LA 71409.
