A Note from Rick: The Special Feeder sale on Tuesday was an up and down market for both Dairy heifers and steers. We had a couple big groups of open heifers that sold very well I thought. The smaller groups struggled a bit in price. The feeder steers were the same way. We had a couple groups of Holstein steers that seemed to break through the stale market that we've been seeing, but there were still a lot of cattle sold in that rut. I really don't know what to think about all of this. Spring is definitely here and I was looking forward to a possible upturn in some of these markets. The Dairy Cattle market definitely has a lot of uncertainty in the short term. Too much milk on the market is not going to change during the annual spring flush. We had a good run of Butcher Cows on Tuesday and the market was a little higher. Bull calves were a little cheaper, but still seemed to be hanging in there. The hay sale was lighter this week and that's no surprise with the first sunny Tuesday in a while! Our renovation project is slowly getting underway. We hope to move the office in time for the Memorial Day Pony Sale and get started on the big project. TLA is an exciting place to be this summer. Check in with us every week to see the progress!
