Under all is the land. Upon its wise utilization and widely allocated ownership depend the survival and growth of free institutions and of our civilization.

This is how the Preamble of the REALTOR Code of Ethics begins. As REALTOR's with over 100 years of combined experience, we believe that home ownership is important for fulfilling the American Dream for everyone. To this end, we have made a commitment to assist 500 people to realize the dream of owning their home. SOULARDARITY CONTINUES FIGHT FOR JUST RATES, RELIABLE POWER, AND CLEAN ENERGY IN WAKE OF COVID-19

In January, DTE files its first request for a rate increase since the COVID-19 pandemic. Despite raking in record profits on the backs of families using more power at home, DTE is still likely seeking for more money from the already-taxed residential ratepayers.

Thankfully, Soulardarity members and partners are ready to lean into the fight. We have pushed back on DTE's attempted regressive rate increases many times, but for the first time ever we have received funding from the Utility Consumer Participation Board to do so.

Our team consists of the Abrams Environmental Law Clinic from University of Chicago, members Stephanie Johnson and Jackson Koeppel, and partner Gloria Lowe of We Want Green Too! on the eastside of Detroit. Together, we will fight against extractive rate hikes, push for greater access to clean energy for all, and demand that energy infrastructure be improved. We will bring critical research on how energy costs and environmental justice burden low-income households, led by WWG2, into the public record to support this effort.

We have already seen DTE and Consumers push through another cost break for industrial energy users as part of the massive handout to economic development pushed forward by the State of Michigan, ultimately punishing our communities for being in poverty. This rate case is one opportunity to draw the line and say that every person deserves energy as a human right and necessity of life!

Stay tuned for more updates throughout the year!
