'Charles Nichols Retires' continued...
I did get the classic gold watch. Since I was a geologist, they also through in a rock. (see photo at lower left.)
The grandkids, all under 6, thought it was a "neat graduation ceremony". To help them understand what was happening, we coined the phrase "permanent recess". I am now the official operator of the "grampa mobile". I am learning more about soccer than anyone should have to know, but fun to interact with the kids. The hardest thing to get used to is not needing to hurry to get something done. Now I start to get anxious and think to myself, "hey, slow down, you have the rest of your life".

Charles says he plans to help with the shopping, laundry, cleaning, etc. until Judy can retire also. (2 yrs) He also says that, he still rides his mountain bike and has gotten back into line dancing.

We wish him a long happy retirement. I can recommend it!
