SMALL GOOD DEEDS THAT CHANGE THE WORLD

In Scotland, a poor farmer named Fleming heard a scream while working in his field. He ran toward the sound, and found a boy trapped in the swamp. Fleming rescued the boy. The next day, a fancy carriage arrived at Fleming's farm, and a well dressed aristocrat stepped out. He introduced himself as the boy's father, and offered to pay the farmer for his good deed. The farmer refused the gift. Just then, Fleming's young son appeared. The aristocrat asked Fleming if the small boy was his son. When the proud farmer replied that he was, the aristocrat offered to give his son a good education for the farmer's good deed. He knew that if the son was anything like his father, he will become someone to be proud of. With the aristocrat's support, the boy graduated from St. Mary's Hospital Medical School in London and became Sir Alexander Fleming, who helped discover penicillin. Years later, the aristocrat's son fell ill with pneumonia. Penicillin saved his life. The aristocrat's son was Sir Winston Churchill. For those who do not know of Churchill, he was thought of as one of the most influential people during WWII and helped preserve the freedom of the world according to many historians. AN EXAMPLE OF A SMALL GOOD DEED THAT CHANGED THE WORLD.

We make a living by what we get, but we make a life by what we give.
