ORCAS CAR TALK

It's your choice, $8.09 or about $140.00. My "new to me car" had foggy plastic headlight lenses. Before spending $140 on new lenses, I thought I'd try one of those kits with chemicals and special sand pads, for as memory serves me, about 30 bucks. I stopped in to my favorite main land auto parts store. The owner is one of those rare folks that has always recommended what's best for me, not necessarily for his store. The store owner directed me to the nearest hardware to purchase a can of "OFF W/25% Deet" bug spray. Twelve dollars later, I was ready for action. I cleaned off the loose dirt, shot a quick spray on the foggy lenses, and watched them turn CLEAR! If you buy your OFF with DEET at your local hardware, it will run you about 8 dollars and some change. Remember your miracle spray must have DEET.

If this does not work on your headlights, you can spray the OFF on you to keep the bugs away while you are trying to install your new headlight assemblies. All in all, it's worth a try. I can now see much better driving at night.
