

At this point, your project should be well underway. For this step, we aren't providing any new information, but we want to encourage you to keep going. It's normal to encounter barriers in your process or reach a point where you feel stuck. Don't give up! Remember – for science projects, it's OK if your hypothesis proves to be wrong, and for engineering projects, you can continue to redesign your prototype until you meet your design criteria!
