

As we come to the close of this year, we reflect on the highs and the lows but never forget the Lord is good no matter what. I know that not every day has been the best but I am reminded when I look around that it could be worse and so I thank God for the bad days because I know that they were used to better me.

Looking forward to the future, we have hope that the God we serve is getting ready to show us just how good life can get for all those who love and follow him. As we prepare to bring in a new year, let us remember that what happened in the past year doesn't have to dictate the outcome of this new year.

It has been my joy and honor to grow with each of you in these past few months. I believe that this is just the beginning for us and that we are getting ready to see the hand of the Lord on this ministry. I am excited to see what he is going to do for us and the way that he is going to move on our behalf.

Remember that all though we might love all the presents, family and food that the holidays bring, the reason for the season is the birth of our Savior. So, this holiday, take time to meditate on all that he is done for you and know that he isn't finished with you yet. The best is yet to come and he is getting ready to blow your mind.

Peace and Blessings,
Pastor Tyrek
