

Critical questions to ask when choosing a school

- What will I pay? What is my net price?
- How will I pay?
- Am I eligible to receive scholarships or grants?
- Am I eligible for federal student aid?
- What is the graduation or completion rate for the institution?
- Will I be able to repay my loans?

For comprehensive information on federal student aid programs, visit StudentAid.gov.

At StudentAid.gov, you will find information to help you determine what types of federal financial aid you can receive, whether you qualify for aid, how to apply, how to manage your loans after college and much more.

Comparing Colleges

A Guide to the U.S. Department of Education's Tools for Students and Families

As you navigate the college admissions process, the U.S. Department of Education provides tools for you and your family that make it easy to compare vital information such as college costs, average student loan debt and graduation rates across different institutions. To access the tools described here and more, visit the College Affordability and Transparency Center at collegecost.ed.gov.

The College Scorecard

The College Scorecard includes essential information about a particular college's costs, its graduation rates and the average amount its students borrow, all in a standardized, easy-to-read format. It is designed to help you compare colleges and choose one that is well-suited to your individual needs.

Net Price Calculator Center

The Net Price Calculator Center provides you a tool to explore the net price of any given college – that is, the price after subtracting the scholarships and grants you are likely to receive. Then, you can easily compare estimated net prices across the institutions that you are considering.
