Their friends have been calling them Starsky and Hutch recently. Better known as Steve Felch and Todd Sprickman, both 16 years old, they got their nicknames after helping the Sheriff's Department capture a burglary suspect on June 12.

MASCOT

Hayfork High School has a new mascot. Its not really a new mascot but its a new wood carved mascot. The woodcarving is of a Timberjack. George Gulli, a woodcarver at Great America was hired by the Booster Club for the job. So Mr. Gulli carved a redwood Timberjack 12 feet in height.

The Timberjack stands on a 2 foot pedestal and will be set in concrete at the high school.

The Booster Club made the purchase of the statue, which the school is likely to appreciate. The Booster Club wanted to thank Sierra Pacific for transporting the statue home to Hayfork. Editors note:

Hopefully by next issue, ye ole Timberjack will be in his permanent position and a picture will be taken for all to see. burlary call, Steve and Todd came along and asked if they could help. Sergeant Howard told them to look through the willows along the creek and call him if they see anyone.

Five minutes later Todd came hauling a juvenile by the collar with the locked cash box containing $104.25.

WYCKOFF'S RETIRE

Charlie & Bernice are both retiring in a couple weeks. Bernice will be leaving Ernie's Department Store, after 15 years, on the 17th of July and the 21st of July is Charlie's last day at Sierra Pacific after 5 years. Try and imagine Ernie's without Bernice,...impossible!

Charlie said they plan to become more active in civic affairs now that they will have more time and since he won't be working nights anymore.

BLOOD RECORD

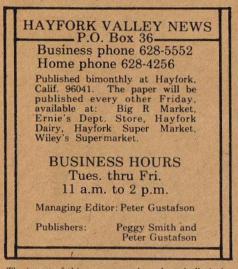

Coordinated efforts by several local groups on Thursday, June 29, resulted in a record 60 pints of blood collected in Hayfork.

Southern Trinity Blood Reserve Chairman, Malcolm Baldwin credited the VFW Auxillary, the Senior Citizens Group and the local REACT group for helping spread the word. Rotary provided coffee and snacks and Irene's Cafe offered free pie and coffee to everyone who donated blood. Also Mike Munson landed the new helicopter in front to attract attention to the drive.

Baldwin stated that the turnout was far greater than any held previously. He said that several people were turned away after the 5 pm closing. 'It isn't that we didn't want their blood or didn't appreciate their effort. It takes time to pack the units for shipping and the ladies from the Shasta Blood Center really don't like our mountain roads.'

Rotary representative Scott Thompson added that the next drive would have extended hours to accomodate more people. He said that Hayfork should pat itself on the back.

Dear Editor

I would like to take the liberty of entitling this letter 'FACTS AT RANDOM.

Nowhere is the spirit of cooperation more vital than in the small school district. In the community there is a melting pot of different ideas on education that represents the beliefs and convictions of many people.

The board and the administrator have the responsibility of blending these diverse philosophies into a school pattern that represents what is best for the total school. We do not have available to us the broad professional staff available to the large school district. Our superintendent is not only a manager, as most administrators are, but a person who must actually carry out a multitude of assignments, reports, etc. He is not only the principal, but also personnel manager, business officer, transportation manager, legal officer, purchasing agent, and personal confidant of parents, stud-ents and staff. He must be knowledgeable in school law and school finance and is responsible for budget preparation and control, transportation, plant maintenance and operation, and curriculum, to name a few. Naturally each of these must be carried out as effectively as though it were his only responsibility. Often, members of the school board and the community make additional requests that are over and above the duties necessary for carrying on the daily needs of a smoothly running school district. Also, he must be involved with legislation as he must know how each new education bill will effect our sch-Then there are the board ools. meetings that must be prepared for, as well as the need to provide the board members with information and input so that they may make their decisions as wisely as possible. Our Superintendentprincipal has held this position since 1960 - 18 years with this school. He works 8 plus hours per day, 235 days per year. His salary is $27,000. Last year Weaverville Elementary hired a new superintendent-principal. His salary was $26,000 for his first year with the school.

In Peggy Smith's column, 'THOUGHTS AT RANDOM' she expressed some concern as to the priorities of the board in determining salaries. Perhaps I can help clear up some of the misconceptions she has. We have no janitors making $13,000 and we have no secretaries making over $12,000. We do have two custodian-maintenance men (whose duties far surpass those of a janitor) who work 11 plus months per year and whose salaries are $12,216. after 5 years of service with the district. We do have an administrative assisstant who works 11 plus months per year and whose salary is $12,034 after more than 10 years of service with the district. I, for one, cannot support the philosophy that we should take the salary of a first year teacher and then be sure that no other employee, regardless of duties or years of service with the school, should be paid as much as that.

In the small school district where all interested parties (board, staff and community) are so closely involved, honesty and frankness are vital. Education, not confrontation is what school board meetings are all about.

If you attend the board meeting, and have honest concerns, I am sure you will find the trustees will do their best to give you straight forward answers to your questions.

I would like to close with one random thought. It occurs to me that every interested community member and parent, every employee and school board member should have one goal in mind and that is to provide the children of Hayfork with the best educational opportunities and learning experiences that we possibly can. Improvements can always be made. If criticism is made constructively, with the CHILDREN as our sincere CONCERN, then we can be confident that we are doing our best to meet that goal.

Dear Editor

I read the article in the last paper about the vandalism at the park concerning the pool.

Don't the ones who did it realize who they are hurting by doing this?

There are alot of children that enjoy the pool during the summer and it is a good recreation for them, mine for instance were very unhappy that they couldn't go swimming. Their dad did volunteer work on that same pool years ago so the youngsters of this community could have a place to swim, it makes a lot of us mad to see someone come along and destroy it for us.

I've lived here all my life and I am beginning to see alot of vandalism lately, including the Fair grounds and I am wondering what the parents are doing and what kind of discipline they are showing if any to their children?

In my day we learned respect for other people's property and I have been a strong teacher in this area to my own eight, I still have four at home and if they ever do any deeds such as the ones I've heard about lately, they won't sit down for awhile and I have 2 teenagers, Our town will soon be as bad as the city if we let this type of destruction go on, lets put a stop to it now by having a good talk with our kids.

Why Livestock is Essential for your Garden.....

Those who dream about the ideal life in the country often include livestock and a garden in their plans; few realize, however, that these enterprises are mutually dependent on one another if either is to be truly successful.

Property maintained livestock will not only provide your home-stead with meat, milk, and fiber; they will also provide you with large amounts of manure. Since manure is the richest natural source of fertilizer commonly available to the organic gardener, the implications of this fact are ob vious: Your livestock will provide you with vegetables as well as meat. Farm animals feed both the farmer and the soil directly. The soil also feeds the farmer (and the livestock). Thus, the two elements of livestock and soil form a circle that perpetuates each other The farmer benefits endlessly. from both aspects of this relationship. He eats meat, he eats fresh vegetables, his soil is constantly improving, and he saves money.

The manure from your animals will also enrich pasturage and hay crops that you might be inclined to grow on your homestead. Weeds from the garden can be fed directly to your stock; it's surprising just how much succulent weed growth a fertile garden will generate. It's surprising how far these weeds can go in supplementing a large part of the diet of your animals.

Of course, relatively few of us have either the land or equipment to grow all of the food our livestock requires. Presently, I grow only one-third to one-half of my livestock ration; yet that figure inches upward every year, and I can forsee a time in the not-verydistant future when everything my animals eat is home-grown. In the meantime, the soil in both my pastures and garden (as well as in a small field destined for hay) becomes richer with the passing of each year, thanks to the vigorous digestive system of my goats, sheep, rabbits, and poultry. After I finish my pig pen, I'll be adding hogs to this roster. Both my freezer and manure pile will be the better for it.

So I buy some feed. I don't mind. MY food is both higher in quality and lower in price than the tasteless, wilted produce and hormone-laden meats offered in stores, and my fertilizer bills are non-existent. The old adage that 'He who sells hay sells land' is also true conversely: That is, he who BUYS hay BUYS land, or at least the means to make land richer and more productive. So don't begrudge your animals the hay bill. They'll more than repay you for it.

Of course, you must take good care of your manure if you're to derive the full benefit from it. It should be stored under a roof or black plastic. Always keep a dry bedding of wood shavings or straw in the areas where the animals live and sleep. This insures healthy, comfortable stock as well as providing for a better compost mix. Periodically, I will devote future columns to the care and particular problems associated with different types of livestock. Until then, remember that nothing teaches better than experience. Get some stock, even if it's just a few chickens. Read what you can, ask advice when necessary, and go to it. You'll be pleasantly surprised at the improvement in the condition of both your land and your larder.

On June 30, the annual Rotary Demotion Dinner was held at the home of Ernie Glass. Earl Sayre was demoted and Ernie Glass was installed as the President for the coming year.

The June 26 wedding of Tim Robrecht and Gay Smith was an unusual ceremony for the Hayfork area. Bishop Newton from Weaverville officiated over the traditional Hawaiian ceremony.

The bride wore a Hulakuu which is a long white wedding dress accompanied by a long train. The maid of honor, Sharon Zuegin, and the brides maids Sharon Smith and Lori George, wore long red dresses with small imprinted white flowers.

Tim wore all white pants and shirt accented by an all red satin sash. Best man Matt George and ushers David Caldwell and Bruce Atwell wore the same attire as Tim; however they accented their outfits with red and white printed sashes. All members of the wedding party wore the traditional Hawaiian leis made of carnations.

The ceremony was held at the Fairgrounds outside on the lawn. Decorations were provided by the bride's sister Maomi. An Arbor was constructed for the bride and groom to stand in front of while exchanging their vows. Several floral arrangements were used. The red, white and red and white varigated carnations that help set the scene were from Hawaii.

The reception was held in the dinning hall at the Fairgrounds. Family from as far away as Los Angeles, San Francisco, New York and Hawaii attended. The hula and the money dance were some of the dances performed at the reception. One of the highlights of the reception was when the bride danced the 'Hawaiian Wedding Song' for her husband.

A little confusion existed also when the bride's father, Richard, forgot he was the one who was to bring the bride to the wedding it's a good thing he was reminded. Such a wonderful wedding ceremony and reception for Tim and Gay.

with sticks and rocks so as to cause welts and cuts on the animal.

Several Mustangs have been boarded at the Fairgrounds, as well as more domestic horses. Owners of these Mustangs have spent many hours getting these wild animals to trust them so that they could even get close to them.

Many of these hours have been lost as the result of recent abuse. Most of the horses, including the domestic ones, are so frightened and skittish now that they are unapproachable.

Besides the problems with animals and owners, there is danger to those who are malicious. The Mustangs have been known to lash out with hooves and teeth in any direction, faster than can be imagined.

Furthermore, the Fairgrounds needs the additional revenue of boarding animals in order to continue to function. Such vandalism has discouraged boarding. Such malicious behavior may force the locking up of the Fairgrounds at night...which would pose an inconvenience to the entire community.

PLEASE, with everyone's help: reporting suspicious behavior at the Fairgrounds, keeping watch over your children, and providing youngsters with a little counseling against cruelty to animals and a discussion of the nature and origin of Mustangs; perhaps we can end these problems.

The U.S. Forest Service is asking the public to help it answer this question.

The Forest Service has formulated 10 alternatives for the use of 6.2 million acres of undeveloped land in California, and is asking the public to consider the alternatives.

Some 555,000 acres in the Shasta-Trinity Forest are included in land being considered in the Roadless Area Review and Evaluation (RAREII) draft environmental statement. RARE II proposals apply to 62 million acres nationally.

The public has until October 1 to give their views.

The environmental statement will be shown at Hayfork Ranger Station from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday beginning July 19.

Forest Service personnel will be present to answer questions about the statement.

The Forest Service will incorporate public comments in its final draft proposal, which will be presented to Congress in January. * * * * *

YOUNG ADULT CONSER-VATION CORP BEGINS

The U.S. Forest Service in Hayfork has begun a three year program as host agency for the Young Adult Conservation Corp, (YACC) a federally funded program to provide meaningful employment for young adults 16-23 years of age.

YACC was established by enactment of public law and is designed to provide year-round jobs for unemployed and out of school young men and women, in doing conservation work on nat-ional forests, national parks, fish hatcheries, wildlife refuges, etc. The program on the Hayfork Ranger District, according to Program Director, Stan Stetson, will involve 10 to 20 enrollees who will work on various conservation projects.

The crews are scheduled to do work on cattle drift fences, water system development, mechanical releases of conifer plantations, recreation site improvement and other jobs of an environmentally sound nature.

Ten enrollees hired from the local area are now working out of the Hayfork District and will work year-round with each employee being employed for a 12 month period.

It was announced by Ed Jungwirth at the regular scheduled June 26 Water Board meeting, there will be a request of all water users to adhere to an every other day schedule of lawn and garden watering. Schedules will be enclosed with your next water billing Seems as if the water district is plagued with low pressure during peak hours rather than a lack of water.

When the $1,451,000 reservoir and treatment plant was originally designed, it serviced 250 users, since that time it has risen to nearly 600 users with over 26 miles of line since 1951.

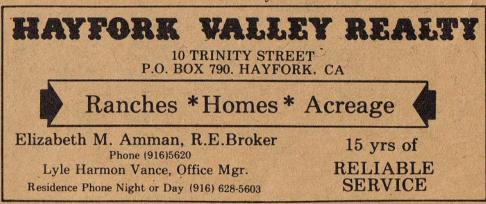

The minimum billing per month to all users is $8.00, which is a $5.50 service charge and $2.50 going towards the minimum usage of 1000 cu. ft. of water.

The district receives approximately $3,000 per year in taxes (water district tax on property tax billing).

ing). They maintain a water flow of 1 million gallons per day and due to the lower level of the south end of town the water pressure can drop quite low to higher elevations.

They seem to be on a perpetual merry-go-round due, to the fact, monies must be spent to increase pressure - which would ultimately (you probably guessed it) users water rates would have to be increased.

The board decided on an alternative method, whereby notifing the 5 large consumers of water, notable the fair grounds, both schools, cemetery and the park that they would be unable to supply them with water for irrigation. They are all working now on trying to budget for a well system. Once this has been accomplished the Water Board feels they will not only have sufficient pressure, but would also be able to service 250 additional domestic systems.

EDITOR ERROR

The last issue in reporting the pay raise for teachers at the elementary school, the explanation of the percentage wasn't accurate. The 2%, totalled as part of their raise, was actually the increased cost of health insurance, workman's compensation, unemployment ins. etc. There were no new benefits, just a higher cost to the school. Also the 4% is an automatic increase each year the individual teacher remains at the school, similar to seniority pay in unions. The actual negotiated raise the teach-ers are scheduled for in the tentative budget is 51/2%. Also classi-fied salaries (janitors & aides, etc.) were not decided upon as of last board meeting. They had asked 7%.
