

CHRISTIAN CRUSADE FOR TRUTH

Intelligence Newsletter

"And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." John 8:32.

November - December, 1992

The United States In Decline

The great, (and intentional) dialectics of the two superpowers in mortal combat since World War II is now well into the phase called the synthesis. Neither the United States nor the Soviet Union, representing the thesis and the antithesis, are the same as they were forty years ago. The world could see in the next ten years the greatest threat that western civilization has ever confronted. The changes that are now being contemplated are known as the "The Brotherhood of Man," a term commonly used within the secret societies and in world Zionism.

The great western civilizations of the past had one thing in common. They were Caucasian and as one civilization declined it was replaced by another White, Caucasian civilization. The center of power and influence would simply move from one country to another. That influence was felt over the entire world and while many would disagree, the tools and other conveniences created by western civilizations have improved the quality of life for all the peoples of the earth. To those who disagree, we can only say, how soon we forget grubbing out a living with primitive tools.

Western man himself is the cause of his own destruction and built into our civilization is the mechanism, which causes this. Before we can understand this, we must realize that the Holy Bible is written about western man. The Word is available to the entire world and all can "come to the foot of Zion and learn of our ways." Most of the world has and that is the influence that was felt over the entire world.

What are those mechanisms? First, in Genesis 3 it was Eve who, through emotion, tried to determine good from evil. The female mind is much more complex emotionally than the male mind. A women's intuitiveness is based on that emotionalism and is therefore generally a better judge of human character. The male mind is based on reason. It is through reason that right and wrong, good and evil, is acknowledged from the Holy Bible. When we learn to accept this fact, we can then understand why God is so adamant about the roles for both the man and the woman with respect to order in the home and within the government.

The second mechanism built into our civilization for our own destruction is found in Cain and Abel. "And Adam knew Eve his wife; and she conceived, and bare Cain, and said, I have gotten a man from the Lord. And she again bare his brother Abel. And Abel was a keeper of sheep, but Cain was a tiller of the ground. And in process of time it came to pass, that Cain brought of the fruit of the ground an offering unto the Lord. And Abel, he also brought of the firstling of his flock and of the fat thereof. And the Lord had respect unto Abel and to his offering: But unto Cain and to his offering he had not respect. And Cain was very wroth, and his countenance fell." (Genesis 4:1-5)

Cain, like his mother, deviated from God's rules and wanted to decide for himself what the offering to God was to be. God demanded a blood sacrifice and Abel provided it but Cain did not. As we shall see, one of the forces today that is a part of the great conspiracy to create the "Brotherhood of man" uses Cain as their role model. They, too, want to decide what is good and what is evil.

The third mechanism is again found in the book of Genesis. It is the story of Jacob and Esau, the twin boys of Isaac and Rebekah. As we read the story of Jacob and Esau, several points of interest referring to the current problem come to mind. Esau was a cunning person while Jacob was a plain man. Isaac, using the male reasoning, liked Esau because of his abilities. Rebekah, using the female intuition based on emotion, loved Jacob. Ethnicity (race) was not important to Esau and consequently he married out of his race. As you follow the life story of Esau, the Bible never shows his giving of a blood sacrifice. Jacob recognized the importance of this obedience. Esau swore that he would kill (destroy) his brother Jacob. Modern Zionism represents Esau. Quoting from The Jewish World of February 9, 1883; "The great ideal of Judaism is that the whole world shall be imbued with Jewish teachings, and that in a Universal Brotherhood of nations, a greater Judaism in fact, all the separate races and religions shall disappear."

So what are the mechanisms built into the western civilization that are causing us to destroy ourselves? It is the "Brotherhood of Man" concept that is the driving force behind both the worldwide secret societies of Freemasonry and the Zionist movement. Coupled with that is the fact that the modern Judeo-Christian churches are feminized and determine good and evil with emotionalism and not with reasoning. As more and more Judeo-Christian churches ordain women pastors or are led by the feminine mind, we come closer and closer to the "Brotherhood of Man" concept.

Note that it was in 1883 that The Jewish World made its declaration. It was in the same time frame that two of the leading architects of modern Freemasonry revealed the final plan to consummate the World Revolutionary Movement's dream. Was there networking and communication between the two organizations, Zionism and Freemasonry? You can be assured of it.

From the book The Ancient Plain of Secret Societies, written by William T. Still, we read, "Nationalism runs strongly in the human spirit, and is very difficult to erase, especially on a continent divided by warfare for many centuries. Therefore, they (Mazzini and Albert Pike) set to work on their greatest plan, a plan so vast in scope that only a reader familiar with the great power wielded by the secret societies could begin to believe it."

"In 1871, Mazzini issued a letter in which he outlined the final three-part plan of the Illuminati: their grand design for ridding not just Europe, but the entire world of Christianity, and bringing it under the 'illuminated' dictatorship of Luciferianism. This remarkable letter was for many years on display in the British Museum Library in London." (Remember, it was in England, in 1737, that modern speculative Freemasonry originated. Was it in the museum to simply tell the people what was in store for them? -ed.)

"Mazzini proposed a series of world wars. These wars were to embroil every nation in a conflict so bloody and chaotic that eventually every nation would surrender its national sovereignty to an international government, like the League of Nations, or the second attempt, the current United Nations, in order to prevent subsequent global bloodletting. One Masonic scholar wrote in 1987: 'The true birth of World Democracy from its prenatal national confinement is even now in progress. A war-torn, bleeding World is in the midst of labor-pains, preceding the ordeal of birth. Labor-pains in the birth of a New Age!'"

"However, knowing that national sovereignty would certainly die hard, three of these world wars were proposed by Mazzini and Pike in their original plan. The first of these world wars, they hoped, would topple the Czarist government of Russia and establish an Illuminized dictatorship, a new level in the game of control of populations. This would give the Illuminists a secure base from which to operate, with a large population and vast natural resources to fuel the new engine of Illuminism."

"The second World War would allow the new Soviet Russia to capture Europe, or as it turned out, half of it. The third World War would be in the Middle East between the Moslems and the Jews, and would bring about the Biblical Armageddon. Certainly by the end of this World War, the battle-wearied nations would be ready to accept any proposal as long as it promised peace, uniting the entire world under the fatal banner of the Luciferian New World Order. Pike wrote to Mazzini about consequences of the Third World War in 1871:"

" `It will provoke a formidable social cataclysm and the most bloody turmoil. Then everywhere, the citizens, obliged to defend themselves against the world minority of revolutionaries, will exterminate those destroyers of civilization, and the multitude, disillusioned with Christianity, will be without a compass, anxious for an ideal, but without knowing where to render its adoration, will receive the true light through the universal manifestation of the pure doctrine of Lucifer, brought finally into public view, a manifestation which will result from the general reactionary movement which will follow the destruction of Christianity and atheism, both conquered and exterminated at the same time.' "

"Mazzini and Pike may have planned three World Wars in 1871, but the two authors of the Communist Manifesto, Marx and Engels, both spoke of the first world war twenty-three years before that. Karl Marx wrote in 1848 that the `Slavic riffraff,' referring to the Russian people, as well as the Czechs, and Croats, were `retrograde' races whose only function in the world history of the future was to be cannon fodder." (End of quotes from The Ancient Plain of Secret Societies.)

Albert Pike, the infamous Grand Commander of the Southern Jurisdiction of the United States of Freemasonry, and the lackey of the oligarchies who perpetrated the Civil War, was ordered to expand his planning to the world level. Pike and Mazzini (the Italian leader of World Freemasonry) were ordered to bring about three World Wars. Two have already been concluded and the third is still in the planning stage. George Bush apparently thought that the New World Order could be ushered in with just a small "brush fire" in Iraq!

In keeping with their plan, World War I was instigated with the assassination of Archduke Francis Ferdinand, heir to the Austrian imperial throne. Where was the assassination accomplished? In Sarajevo, Bosnia! We must relate the various incidents so important in history with current events. The people of Bosnia, as well as Croatia and Serbia are the very people that Marx wrote about when he called them "retrograde races whose only function in the world history of the future was to be cannon fodder."

Today, at this very moment, Sarajevo, Bosnia is the location being used in an attempt to ignite World War III. The people of Bosnia are primarily of the Moslem faith. As the killing of the Moslem people in Bosnia continues, the Moslem people all over that part of the world are naturally being inflamed to start their Jihad or Holy War. That is exactly the plan created so many years ago by the architects of the One-World Government.

As we see all of these incidents happening, we realize how all-encompassing their plan actually was and is. The organizations involved are nearly endless. At the top of the list, of course, are people with the money. But when we speak of the Rothschilds, Rockefellers, Morgans, Bank of England, Federal Reserve, etc., we are still talking about the second or third level in rank. The Bilderbergers, Trilateralists, Council on Foreign Relations, The Club of Rome, etc., are only the second or third level in rank. The World Council of Churches, The National Council of Churches, and the leaders of many of the denominations are lackeys in the same way that Pike and Mazzini were used (but the churches all did their job well). It was the churches that removed so many Christians from their stewardship in national and world affairs by using a strange form of spirituality through a total misunderstanding of Romans 13. It was many of the churches that taught exactly what Pike and Mazzini planned for World War III.

The GANPAC BRIEF (German American National Political Action Committee, P.O. Box 1137, Santa Monica, CA 90406, $35 per annum- 12 issues) is an excellent newsletter representing the interests of the 52 million Americans of German descent, the nation's largest minority. Their November, 1992 issue carried a very interesting article on the situation on Bosnia and its relationship to the United States. We quote parts of that article.

"When I last visited Germany, I was often asked about the future of the United States, and since at that time the conflagration in former Yugoslavia was reaching new terrible heights every passing day, I merely pointed to Bosnia and said: 'look at Bosnia, that is the future of America,' And I added, 'if you look at Sarajevo today, you'll see what is going to happen soon in most large cities in the U.S.A.' "

"What did I mean by that? I have long held that the break-up of one of the superpowers would automatically be followed by the dissolution of the other. The reason is simple. Both the USSR and the USA had for decades found strength in their adversarial relationship, and with one, namely, the Soviet Union gone, the other, namely, the United States, was bound to collapse also. Incidentally, I am basing my beliefs in this matter on my understanding of natural laws."

"There is another example I can use to explain the situation, recent happenings in Germany. In using foreign occurrences in order to explain a situation, I am purposely removing the emotional factor from an analysis, a factor that often prevents native-born Americans from viewing their own country, and its fate, dispassionately."

"Most of you have read of the attacks by so-called 'Neo-Nazis' on so-called 'refugees' that took place at the end of August in the city of Rostock (formerly part of Communist Germany). The newspapers reported that up to a thousand 'Neo-Nazis' and 'Skinheads' had attacked a 10-story building in which several hundred 'refugees' (Romanian gypsies) and Vietnamese 'guest workers' were housed. It took a great number of riot police to quell the demonstrations but not before the German nationalists (that's what they really are) had reached their goal, namely, to have the foreigners removed from their neighborhood. For good measure the demonstrators torched part of the foreigner hostel. What shook the German political establishment most was the fact that the Rostock population was not afraid to show open sympathy with the rioters, and there are reports that demonstrators fleeing from police were hidden by renters in nearby apartments."

"Here I must intersperse that the Romanian gypsies are not refugees at all. They merely want to take advantage of (allied instituted) lax asylum laws in order to live off the generous German dole. In almost every German city one can now see dirty (why do they always have to be dirty?) gypsy children begging, and it is a fact that gypsies and other non-Germanic foreigners as a whole are responsible for an inordinate amount of crime..."

"...It began several years ago when (in my opinion, directed from abroad) ever larger numbers of Third World 'refugees' arrived, and Frankfurt and other large German cities assumed the look of a 'multi-ethnic,' 'multi-racial' and 'multi-cultural' American metropolis with all its associated ills and, really, no societal benefits."

"Getting back to the fate of the United States, our attention should be on the word 'escalation,' (as exemplified in Germany) for it is this trend, which seems to be the clearest indicator of what lies ahead of us here. Let's think logically: we've had the Los Angeles (Negro) riots. The simplest question to be asked is whether we will soon have more trouble of this kind elsewhere (with more dead and destruction than last April), or whether the Blacks as a whole will finally get their act together, and realize that in destroying the businesses in their own neighborhoods, they first and foremost harm themselves. Again the answer is clear: we soon can expect more and worse riots in different parts of the country. Eventually, troops will have to be deployed, and guns have to be used."

"More and more Whites are arming themselves for such an eventuality, and the day will come soon when the first serious firefight will take place between black gangs and white vigilantes. And, as in Germany with the gypsies, the government of the United States will NOT be on the side of the `staatsvolk' (the White majority-ed.). This in turn will exacerbate the situation. In late August, once again inordinate force was used by the Federal Government to `eliminate' a defender of white rights. In the meantime the `culprit,' Randy Weaver, has become a folk hero in Idaho, where the federal assault took place..."

"We must remember that as little as two years ago (not even 1000 days ago), the various `ethnic' and religious groups in Sarajevo lived at least as peacefully together, as do Blacks, Whites, Jews and Asians live `peacefully' together in America's cities. Now the Serbs, the Croats and the Bosnians are cutting each others' throats. It is important to realize that these three `different' groups are usually one and the same people, albeit with different religions. Imagine how much worse it will be once the different American racial groups begin murdering each other, or embark on `ethnic cleansing', a rather innocuous term for cruel dislocation..."

"The combination of large black gangs (with lots of money through the drug trade), and an ever deepening economic depression is dynamite. You may recall that years ago I told of `warlords' arising wherever empires break apart. My prediction has already come true on the territory of the ex-USSR and in Yugoslavia. Here in the U.S. I expect the first warlords to be black, and the first militarily planned attack against institutions of society will come from that segment of the population. The majority of the Whites will only fight when things really become unbearable. Again I suggest that you watch the Yugoslavian situation carefully because it is a microcosm of what we can expect here. As far as the long-range prospects are concerned, read up on the European Thirty Year's War (1618- 1648)... Therefore, I think it is of utmost importance that you, my friends, always keep up on things happening around you, that you never trust assurances by ANY government and, when things get rough, that you manage to retain your freedom of movement at all costs." End of quotes from GANPAC.

Another organization concerned with the inordinate number of aliens entering into the United States is the Social Contract. They publish an excellent booklet on the subject. (Social Contract, 316 1/2 E. Mitchell St. Petoskey MI 49770. $25/yr.) Quoting from their editorial titled "We Told Them So" in the Fall/1992 issue:

"According to the English language press reports available in the United States, the civil disturbances in Germany concerning asylum applicants are being perpetrated by `radical right wingers, neo-Nazis and skinheads' who are `xenophobic, racist and nationalistic.' They are obviously portrayed as not very nice people."

"One of the advantages of being able to read a foreign language (in my case, German) is that one can work upstream around such formulaic and politically correct language and consult sources closer to the events. Here is my translation from the lead article, filed from Rostock, of the Northamerikanische Wochen-Post for Sept 5-11: `The radical nucleus of the rioters based their action on the shabby justification that this will wake the politicians up, and continued, one must torch a few buildings and break a few heads.' "

"These are not very noble sentiments, but they are an example of our `we told them so.' From the very beginnings of our work on the immigration issue in the late 1960's, we have been saying that if reasonable people did not take up the issue and deal with it while moderate and socially acceptable measures would suffice, then it was very likely that it would end up in the streets. They did not, and it has. The disaffected are not issuing a wake-up call for the politicians."

"There are real grievances, as Wolfgang Bosswick reports on page 36 of this journal. Germany expects about 500,000 asylum applicants this year, for each of whom it costs the government $880 per month. Housing is scarce and unemployment is very high, 40 percent in Rostock and 57 percent in neighboring Lichtenhagen, where, according to The New York Times Large Print Weekly, `neighbors petitioned the politicians for action for months. But nothing happened. Then the youths took matters into their own hands.' In the town of Breitenheerda, the foreigners outnumber the locals. Is it reasonable to expect the latter not to object?"

"What are the public options when the system refuses to respond? Here in the United States, the conditions are in many respects similar. Despite repeated polls showing that the overwhelming majority of Americans, of all political stripes and of all colors, want illegal immigration ended and legal immigration sharply reduced, Congress in 1986 amnestied several millions of persons who had entered the country illegally. Then in 1990, it granted a second series of amnesties to the relatives of the first wave and went on to increase legal immigration by 40 percent. The question for the United States is whether, given this sharp disparity between what the people want and what the politicians are giving, we can avoid our own disturbances."

"The `doctrine of American Exceptionalism' holds that we can. Briefly put, this view states that we are the exception to the rule, that it cannot happen here, that God is with us... But it has already started to happen here..."

"There have been less serious dust-ups (than the Los Angeles riots) in the past, such as the conflict between Vietnamese fishermen and native Texans in the Gulf of Mexico, and the tension brewing between the Hmongs and the natives in Wausau, Wisconsin. It would not take much to touch things off again."

"This is especially true when one considers that affirmative action programs in the U.S. cover some recent immigrants, classifying them as `minorities.' Attempts to have the political system address this inequity have been met with stony silence. Such preferential treatment is also a factor in the German situation."

"If we are not careful, the message that more and more people will draw from incidents like Rostock is that violence works. In another article in Wochen-Post that was highly critical of the German rioters, the author concluded `violence triumphs.' In the words of U.S. News & World Report, `Skinhead violence resolved the problem where bureaucracy could not.' Law review- articles and polite letters to politicians that get form-letter replies do not seem to do much good; what gets action is raising hell. This will get the media to cover your concerns, and provide the publicity that may finally move the system."

"As to American Exceptionalism, we shall see. The combination of economic hard times and continued high-level immigration, coupled with numerous special privileges for the newcomers, could very well tip the scales." End of quotes from The Social Contract.

The point that should be added to this fine article is that the assumption is made that the government's actions, both here in the United States and in Germany, is through ignorance and that conspiracy and treason do not enter into the problem. When we attack only the symptoms and not the cause we wind up attacking the wrong targets.

Yes, the United States government is taking its orders from the same masters as the German government. And, like in Germany, the National Police in the United States are attempting to eliminate white groups which believe in ethnic separation. But, to the best of our knowledge, they are not using snipers (Randy Weaver case) to assassinate them in Germany. World War III may very well be entirely different than World Wars I and II. Albert Pike and Mazzini talked about World War III being one in which the "nihilists" (the denial of the usual forms of religion, customs and morals and the use of revolutionary forces to destroy civilization) would totally destroy Christianity and its civilization.

We must think with reason and not with emotion. We must think constantly about what rules God has given us for any and every situation. Love God by abiding by His Laws.

Praise The Governor

We commend the Governor of Mississippi for his statement, made recently at a Republican Governor's conference, that "America is a Christian Nation." "The less we emphasize the Christian religion the further we fall into the abyss of poor character and chaos in the United States of America."

Gov. Fordice was forced to defend his statement made on November 18th. It appears that Rabbi Steven Engel, who leads the state's largest Jewish congregation, said he was offended by the remarks. "There is a fine line between anti-Semitism and ignorance," according to Engel. "But we all know what happens where there is a great intolerance for people that are different in any way. You're excluded from a society and completely outcast and I think that's a frightening thought for everyone in America." Governor Fordice responded by saying, "I simply made a clear statement of truth. It has nothing to do with running down anybody else's religion. That's a very far stretch that I just can't imagine people making."

We commend Governor Fordice for making his statement of belief but we understand that he, under pressure from the Jews, apologized. That is a sign of weakness and he shouldn't have done that. The First Amendment to the Constitution allows for freedom of expression and beliefs. This allows for the minority beliefs to be expressed. However, if we are to continue as a republic with democratic expression, the majority establishes the norm. Rabbi Steven Engel, in saying what he did, is being anti- American and anti-Christian. Incidentally, being anti-Christian is the same as being antichrist.

Lesson In History Part 20

This lesson is a continuation of that part of American history surrounding the conspiracy that brought about the Civil War and that period immediately following that great war. We should be able to conclude by now that the Civil War was created by a conspiracy and that conspiracy continued on after the war and, in fact, continues to this day.

For those who do not quite believe the conspiracy theory of history, we must explain that a long term conspiracy does not mean that certain men meet in some back room and plan a specific course of action. The conspiracy concept simply means that certain individuals throughout history have the same basic beliefs and as each succeeding generation understands what has already been accomplished, they simply add their own works to the total plan. We normally think of conspiracies in a negative way. But conspiracies can be for the good, also.

It is not a pleasant task to discuss the conspiracies for evil. But it is Biblical, and it is historical, that people seeking to do evil have been with us since Adam and Eve. It is especially unpleasant to discuss the evil that has continued from the very first days of our beloved nation. But that also is a historical fact. If it weren't for the good Christian Americans who have sought out evil and fought it, we would not have the blessings that we have today. The explicit purpose of Christian Crusade for Truth is to teach and inform how serious that ever-expanding evil actually is. How sad it is that many of those conspiring to do evil actually believe they are serving God! "They shall put you out of the synagogues: yea, the time cometh, that whosoever killeth you will think that he doeth God service." (John 16:2)

Lesson 19 concluded with the knowledge that some of the leaders of the Knights of the Golden Circle escaped to Mexico and were given 1,000,000 acres of Mexican territory on which to build a miniature empire. Apparently, the land was given as a token of appreciation for the work they accomplished. But as Benito Juarez finished the war against France and Maximilian, it was time for the Knights to vacate Mexico. Many of them headed for the sparsely populated Territories of the West. As we shall see, that, too, was a conspiracy controlled by leaders within the federal government. We will be able to conclude that in some strange and corrupted way the federal government itself was able to form an "empire" within a supposed "republic." The families of the original oligarchies are the "kings" and "queens" of that empire with their primary holdings within the western states.

In lesson 18 it was shown that John Quincy Adams, a member of the Federalist Party, went to President Jefferson and described to him how a group, known as the Boston Brahmins and members of his own Federalist Party, were conspiring against the United States to create the Civil War. This display of patriotism, high personal character and morals was repeated many times throughout his career. Unfortunately these attributes were not carried down to his succeeding generations. The family became involved with transcendentalism, necromancy and other psychic phenomena. We will discover that these weird and un-Godly actions became a part of the conspiracy in the continuing struggle to destroy the American Republic.

"When thou art come into the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee, thou shalt not learn to do after the abominations of those nations. There shall not be found among you any one that maketh his son or his daughter to pass through the fire, or that useth divination, or an observer of times, or an enchanter or a witch, Or a charmer, or a consulter with familiar spirits, or a wizard, or a necromancer." (Deu. 18:9-11)

The three grandsons of John Quincy Adams (Henry, John Quincy II, and Charles Francis Adams Jr.) had dreams of nobility. Henry Adams was particularly virulent against the American ideal. He spent the Civil War years in England learning the ways of the oligarchs and the hatred for American commoners. He, along with his brothers, were asked to join the Cobden Club in England. The purpose of this club was to have the Lincoln "greenback" notes cancelled and destroyed. These were printed by the U.S. Govt. during the war and paid into circulation in direct opposition to the Bank of England. The club also wanted the U.S. Government's authority to print its own paper money rescinded and that authority turned over to private banks (Bank of England).

In a letter to his headquarters, the U.S. Consul in Liverpool wrote: "They are making great efforts on this side to repeal our tariff and admit British goods free of duty. If effort and money can accomplish it, you may rest assured it will be done. The work is done through the agents of foreign (commercial or banking) houses in Boston and New York. THEIR PLAN IS TO AGITATE IN THE WESTERN STATES (emphasis mine-ed.), and to form free-trade associations all over the country."¹

In addition to his membership in the Cobden Club, Henry Adams was invited to join the prestigious social clubs of British nobility. He was invited to Lord Houghton's estate where he met two men whose names have been carried down through history and when we tie all of this together, we will understand the underlying motives for all of this conspiracy and the "power behind the throne." Those two men were Laurence Oliphant and Evelyn Ashley!

Evelyn Ashley was the son of the Earl of Shaftsbury. He was also the grandson, through his mother, of Lord Palmerston. The family estate of Lord Palmerston had been for many years the center of the intelligence and "Black Operations" against the United States. It was at this estate that the techniques such as hypnotism, transcendentalism and psychopathic manipulation, as well as other forms of mind control, were used to control the actions of people. The United States government's current efforts in this area originated at the estate of Lord Palmerston.

The man that taught these psychological sciences at Lord Palmerston's estate was Laurence Oliphant. This man was the chief intelligence officer for Lord Palmerston and was used all over the world, including in the Chinese opium trade. Both Oliphant and Ashley spent considerable time in the United States for the purpose of de-stabilizing the development efforts of the western states. Obviously it was a continuation of the dreams of empire, which started with the Civil War.²

Just who were Ashley and Oliphant? In past lessons in history we discussed the infamous CABAL, that well known group of men who were so influential in England at the time of Oliver Cromwell. The family names of the CABAL, particularly Ashley Cooper (the Earl of Shaftsbury) and John Maitland (the Duke of Lauderdale) were continued down through the years in a continued effort to bring about a homeland for the Jews. We have written and spoken many times on this situation because of its importance to modern times. The Oliphant family had for many generations been involved in the Chinese opium trade and Lawrence Oliphant became involved in the Jewish homeland question with Lord Palmerston and Queen Victoria and her son Prince Edward VII.

Henry Adams, armed with his knowledge of the desires of the English nobility and his continued hatred for the American system, returned to the United States in 1877. He first spent seven years teaching Medieval History at Harvard University. Then he moved to Washington D.C. where he could become active in his efforts to destroy the development of the American West to the best interests of the still persistent dreams of empire for America. Remember, in 1877 the Civil War was finished and the remaining die-hards within the Knights of the Golden Circle were, by this time, back in the United States, firmly settled in the western territories.

How were they to do it? How could they do it in such a manner as not to raise the suspicions of the American people? It was decided that the concept of protecting the environment would be their method. It really is a "for motherhood and against sin approach." We are all in favor of protecting the environment. But isn't it strange that there was no attempt to keep the pristine and primitive environment in the eastern states? Only in recent years has there been any concern for the ancient mound sites and other known early developments of civilization. Most all work done in the early sites are by private individuals and organizations. But the West was to be preserved for future generations. It was to remain as it was when we found it. Certainly there has been development of some of the land in the West. But most of the western states still remain 70-80 percent federal property and the government is grabbing as much private land as they can to return it to federal ownership.

Henry Adams gathered around him men who were sympathetic to his cause. There were several geologists who were commissioned to investigate the West for its potential. Those who thought that the western states had no useful purpose were invited to join the Cosmos Club, originated by Henry Adams. The purpose of the club was to "bind the scientific men of Washington by a social tie and thus promote that solidarity which is important to their proper work and influence.." Henry Adams simply joined as a member. Major John Wesley Powell was one of the geologists who surveyed the West and was under the influence of the "environmentalists" who wanted the West closed. He was made the first president of the Cosmos Club with Henry Adams steering its course. For his part in limiting the private ownership of the land in the West, his name is given to a dam and lake on the Colorado River.

Henry Adams, himself a mystic, gathered around him men of like persuasion. Many of the members of the Cosmos Club spoke the same language. Club member Othniel C. Marsh was a nephew of the British banker George Peabody and a friend of Thomas Huxley and Charles Darwin. These are the type of men who were in the position to open or close the West.³ They chose to close it.

There are many areas in the western states that should have been set aside for future generations to visit and enjoy. Many of the National Parks have been wisely selected for these purposes. But, does the federal government have to own three- fourths of all of the land in the West? Was it necessary to create the gigantic bureaucracies of the Bureau of Land Management, Forest Service, Bureau of Indian Affairs, etc. Only those living in the western states can appreciate the problems.

But, provisions were made for certain men to control huge portions of the western lands. They didn't own it, the federal government did, but they controlled it and the federal government in effect protected them. As any corporation lawyer will state, "It is not the ownership that counts, it is the control." These men included the Cattle Barons of the West in the late 19th century and the early 20th. It was here that the dream of empire remained. It was an empire and the cattle barons joined in association to protect that empire from all encroachments. It was agreed among them that they would keep out all "sod busters" (farmers), sheep herders, homesteaders and otherwise squatters (similar to the term colonias in Mexico).

Another group of barons that was even allowed to own privately huge quantities of the western states were the railroads. One of the foremost families that were a part of this special treatment were the Harrimans, a family accepted into the Eastern Establishment. Congress actually gave to the railroaders alternate one-section tracts on each side of the proposed railroad. The railroads would sell the land, except for the railroad right-of-way itself to pay for the cost of building the railroad. If a family, or a group of families, had already settled some land and the railroad was surveyed to go through their property, the "squatters" were physically forced off their land. Other industries such as timber and mining were given to members of the oligarchies.

The average American is very individualistic. He believes in the small man, the man who grubs out a living for his family. We tend to distrust money, power and nobility. It has been just that way with respect to these huge empires the government created with the cattle barons and the other commercial interests. We have had a fascination with those "outlaws" who seemingly fought the system, even though they broke basic laws of society. Most of our people have quietly been for those underdogs and we are attracted to stories about them. Sometimes we even side with the outlaw even though the desperado fought on the wrong side!

After Rutherford Hayes was inaugurated President on October 1, 1878 he observed that the state governments were using the military to settle civil disputes. Within two weeks he issued a proclamation to cease using the military as a posse comitatus. The military apparently didn't pay too much attention to the President's order. They entered into many battles in the West between the little man and the privileged "Barons."

It was in these civil disputes, mostly the range wars, that the famous outlaws of the West did their work. Generally, but not always, the gun-slingers fought on the side of the little man, fighting against the moneyed barons. It appeared to be a labor of love because he was able to take the money from the wealthy and help the little man at the same time.

The story of Jessie James is typical. Jessie still was a member of the Knights of the Golden Circle after the Civil War. He joined up with some of the guerrillas of Quantrill's Raiders and indiscriminately attacked wherever there was money. He was collecting money with which to continue fighting against the North but he didn't know that his Knights of the Golden Circle was developed and being used by the oligarchies. When he learned the truth he must have had the same tearing at his heart that the Vietnam veterans had after they realized that they had been used for evil purposes.

The establishment historians state that he simply turned into an ordinary criminal. Others say that he turned to robbing only from the syndicated banks and from the railroads of the oligarchies. In any event, it was a time in our history when there was genuine anger at a system of government in Washington that was so corrupt and so full of traitors that five million of the flower of manhood lost their lives unnecessarily.

Billy the Kid was too young to have opinions of the corruptions surrounding the Civil War. Billy, didn't even really know who he was. His last name was either McCarty, Bonney or Antrim. He was orphaned at the age of 14 and had, from that time on, provided for himself. He worked in a hotel in Silver City, NM and the owner said "He was the only kid who ever worked here who never stole anything." He was completely loyal and devoted to whomever he worked for. He had total allegiance to that person. Under normal circumstances, that would have been termed a highly honorable sense of ethics. However, because of the times and circumstances, that allegiance is what destroyed him.

Billy the Kid's notoriety came from the so-called Lincoln County War, which was between "Cattle Barons" and merchants representing the small ranchers. Billy got caught up in the war because he worked for a young wealthy English immigrant who was a cattleman and banker named John Tunstel. Billy was employed as a cattle guard and thus his allegiance was totally to Tunstel. John Tunstel aligned with Alexander McSween, a lawyer, and John Chisum, a cattleman who owned enormous herds in the Pecos Valley. It is obvious that these men were of the Cattle Baron class and it is probable that Tunstel was related to the oligarchy families in some way. But Billy didn't know the politics of the situation.

The beginning of the Lincoln county war occurred when, Tunstel was killed by a sheriff's posse seeking to levy an attachment upon property belonging to Tunstel. After the killing of Tunstel his sympathizers organized themselves into a party known as the McSwain faction and a sort of guerrilla warfare continued for the following eighteen months until finally broken up by the civil authorities with the aid of the military. Billy killed several of the enemy faction in the process. The battle that ended the war was fought at Lincoln, N.M. in July, 1878. Sheriff Peppin had called upon the United States forces as a posse comitatus. The troops consisted of a company of infantry, a troop of cavalry, some artillery, a gatling gun and a twelve pounder. The troops were drawn up before McSwain's front door where McSwain and fifteen men were stationed, and demanded the surrender and arrest of the entire party. McSwain refused and read the order of President Hayes regarding the use of Federal Troops. While McSwain, Billy and the others had their attention directed to the forces at the front door, other members of the posse and/or military went to the back of the house and set fire to the building by pouring oil on the house and igniting it. In the battle that ensued, McSwain was killed. The war ended but Billy the Kid escaped and maintained his allegiance to Tunstel and his cause by continuing to kill members of the posse and any others who stood in his way.⁴

In the next lesson we will give another example, or two, of the battles between the "Barons," supported by the oligarchies, and the small ranchers and farmers. Then, we will continue with the concept developed at the time of Henry Adams, the grandson of President John Quincy Adams, where the American West was going to be used to turn the entire country back to the moneyed class. Their idea was clever. They would use environmental concerns in such a way that many Americans would even help to accomplish their own demise. Maybe those at Lord Palmerston's estate didn't realize the full implications when they conceived the idea but, as it has turned out, their conspiracy has grown to be a very serious matter.

Bibliography

1. Salisbury, Allen, The Civil War and the American System: America's Battle with Britain 1860-1876, Campaigner Publications, N.Y. 1978
2. Taylor, Anne, Lawrence Oliphant, Oxford Univ. Press, Oxford England 1982
3. Samuels, Henry Adams
4. Twitchell, Ralph, Leading Facts in New Mexico History, Horn & Wallace, Albuquerque 1963