The Ronald McDonald House located in Memphis, Tennessee was completed in 1995. The facility provides lodging for seriously ill children, their parents and siblings, some who have traveled a great distance, to receive specialized medical care at St. Jude Children's Research Hospital. Features of the construction consisted of a place to accommodate families where they can sleep in a warm bed, take a shower in their private bathroom and prepare and eat meals in a spacious, cheerful kitchen. Families also have access to a fitness room, meditation room, laundry rooms, and a park with a playground, a basketball court and a pavilion.
