

Animal Magic...

When you look at your four legged friend - what do you see? Do you see just a dog or a cat for instance - or do you see a whole lot more?

Animals are amazing creatures and are so much more than what we give them credit for.

I have the privilege of being able to communicate with animals and I am blown away time and time again by their capacity for love of us humans. A lot that I chat to have been abused in their life but there is always that spark of love still inside of them and that willingness to help us in whatever way they can.

All of the animals that I chat to display such unique personalities and characteristics that make them who they are. The one thing that they all have in common is that every single one of them is so grateful at being given the opportunity to be heard. All of them just want someone to take the time to listen to them. They do not care if what they have to say is judged as 'not important enough' - they all have such valuable information to share with their owners on their current life, their likes and dislikes, previous homes etc. Some have behavioral issues which can be fully or partially resolved by understanding the point of view of your pet as to why they do things a certain way or if any changes can be made to help them. I always leave with a deep knowing that the bond between owner and pet is so much stronger and on some level healing has taken place on both sides.

A lot of the animals that we have in our life have been with us in previous lifetimes. I personally find it so comforting that these magnificent beings that share such a relatively short period of our lives can choose to come back and join us again and again. It is so devastating when you lose an animal, the thought that you could be reunited with them again in another lifetime or even in this same lifetime is an amazing gift in my opinion.

Many of the animals that come into our lives are far wiser and more highly evolved than we are. We could learn a lot from our pets if we only took the time to listen. There are so many gifts that they could teach us and show us - there are no coincidences regarding what pets appear in your life. They are all there for a reason.

After losing all of my beloved pets earlier this year and coming to terms with the fact that it was their time to return to spirit, I am extremely delighted to be able to now share my life with two kittens. Sabrina and Phoenix joined us in July at 10 weeks old as sister and brother and have wreaked havoc on our home ever since! I instantly knew that I had known them in many lifetimes and the bond between the three of us is so strong. I have since discovered that they are both highly evolved beings that have chosen to reincarnate at this time to assist me in my work with animals. I am so humbled by their willingness to help me and am constantly blown away by their wisdom and knowledge that they both possess. I am so blessed to be able to walk this journey with them and cannot wait to see what the future holds for the three of us.
