Foal Requirements:

Lilly Pond Foal requires that in order for you to adopt a foal you must meet very specific qualifications.

You must have owned a horse previously.

You must have high quality fencing; no high tensile or barbed wire. We prefer this for adult horses as well. Foals also require 3-4 board fencing or gate panels.

You must have an active relationship with your vet and farrier, and must have their support of bringing a foal into your program. They also will need to vouch for the care you provide your current horse.

You must have a barn with stalls on your property in order to adopt foals. Foals must be constantly monitored in order to provide them with the same care and attention their mother's would provide. Foals are also prone to illness at young ages, and must be monitored to catch any potential problems early.

You must presently own horses. Foals require socialization and interaction with other horses in order to learn how to be a horse and participate in a herd. Other horses, particularly adult horses, are also necessary in order to teach foals manners they would ordinarily learn from their mothers.
