

In-House General Counseling Services

In addition, Moulton & Long PLLC can provide a unique practice area dedicated to providing the services of an in-house general counsel position to private start-up companies. The firm's general counsel practice is designed to afford our smaller clients the day-to-day services of a general counsel in a cost-effective manner that eliminates hourly billing and reduces overhead and internal costs. Moulton & Long PLLC advises clients on general business matters in the areas of corporate law, employment law and contract law, using a monthly fixed fee so that each client receives consistent legal advice at a fixed, predictable cost. Moulton and Long PLLC's General Counsel Services provides a comprehensive yet cost-effective alternative for companies seeking the comfort and consistency of having in-house legal services available for all aspects of their day-to-day business. Each client is individually served and their program is tailor made to fit their specific needs.
