We know, not just any baby gift will do . . .

introducing gavin the goat[©]

Gavin the goat lived up in a tree. He was different than the others, he liked pretzels you see. He would do anything for them, he would search high and low. His mom asked him "why?" He said "they look like a bow!" He loved them so much he would walk for miles, entering countries, being greeted with smiles.

He found a croissant when he visited france. "Is this a pretzel?" he said. "Why no, silly pants!" He thought a "poffertje" in holland might taste the same. "This isn't a pretzel and it has a funny name!" "Wait!", he thought, "Germany is that way! They'll have a pretzel I can eat today!"

"Guten tag!" they said as he crossed country lines. "Are you looking for pretzels? Just follow the signs!" They were hanging from ceilings and in baskets on the floor. He had so many pretzels, he couldn't eat anymore! "My belly is full and I'm tired you see. I'll wrap in my blanket and lounge up in this tree."

introducing elijah the elephant[©]

Elijah the Elephant loved all the colors, except for his own, which he found drab and duller. “Why gray?” he would wonder, while shaking his head. “I’d rather be pink, purple, green, blue, or red.” One day he went walking to look at the flowers. Admiring their colors, he strolled on for hours.

Soon it got late and Elijah looked ‘round. “I don’t think this is Kenya,” he said with a frown. “You’re in India now,” said an elephant nearby. Elijah stopped short and exclaimed in surprise, “Why, you’re smaller than me, but I’m sure we are brothers!” “No doubt,” said the ellic. “Come meet all the others!”

Elijah’s new friends threw a big celebration to show him the customs and food of their nation. They dressed him in flowers and painted his face with a rainbow of colors – he loved this new place! “It’s okay that I’m gray,” he happily said. “I can always add pink, purple, green, blue, or red!” Elijah curled up with his blankie that night; grateful and gray-ful, he turned out the light.

Liam the Lion was a playful young cub who frolicked and pounced in the African scrub. He'd roam the savanna and splash in the creek of his beautiful homeland, the great Mozambique. One day while he scampered some visitors came.

They gave him a snack and asked him his name. "I'm Liam," he said, while gobbling the treat. "And what is the name of this scrumptious sweet?" "It's an oatmeal cookie," they said in surprise, "Made in America, beyond the blue skies." "America!" cried Liam, "I must go there right now! I must find some more cookies, I'll get there somehow!"

So Liam set out, and he hopped on a train. When he got to the coast, he boarded a plane. At last he arrived in downtown New York City so busy! He thought, but still oh so pretty! He followed his nose to a bakery shop and ordered six cookies, he ate without stop! He ordered six more for the long journey back, pleased with his travels, and pleased with his snack. At last he returned to his African den and snuggled his blanket, at home once again.

This is the story of Kiwi the cat and what led her to wear a fish on her hat. While the rest of the pack enjoyed playing together, Kiwi liked kangaroos much, much better. One day while playing and hopping about, her roo friend invited her over for trout. Kiwi said “yes!” she was ready to cry, “I simply love fish but it’s always meat pie.”

“I had no idea!” her friend shouted with glee, “If it’s fish you are seeking, you should go sail the sea!” She sailed through Java and also Brunei, she just couldn’t handle another meat pie! Captain asked “Where are you going?” She said, “China I think. I’m looking for fish and something to drink.” He handed her a cookie and inside was a wish. It read “Good fortune for you. Today you’ll have fish!”

“Yay!” she exclaimed as they docked on the shore and Kiwi ate fish until there were no more. She turned to the captain “I have to get back. My mother will worry and I didn’t pack.” “What you’ve eaten is lucky so don’t you worry. Pin this fish on your hat and you’ll be home in a hurry!” She made it home safe, just like he said and curled up in her blanket and headed to bed.

In the land beyond dreams, beyond rainbow's end, lived a sweet unicorn in need of a friend. Uma, you see, had three spots on her nose, nine more on her back, and two on her toes! While all of the others in Unicorn Land seemed perfectly spotless and perfectly grand, Uma felt different and wished she could be the same as the others – and that meant spot-free!

“Maybe the fairies can help me,” she thought. “Surely they know how to get out a spot.” Uma decided to set out right then through the dark forest to reach Fairy Glen. “Welcome!” they cried. “We just love how you twinkle! Your spots make you look like a cupcake with sprinkles!” “You like them?!” asked Uma and blinked back a tear. “Of course, they’re what make you a you-nicorn, dear!”

And with that Uma realized her spots were just fine – they made her you-nique, why her spots were divine! That night Uma cuddled her blanket in bed and smiled at her spots. “I love you,” she said.

introducing penelope the poodle[©]

Penelope Poodle was a dreamy young pup with her head in the clouds and her nose pointed up. Butterflies were her favorite, she loved how they flew over France's green fields and deep rivers of blue. One day she gave chase to her butterfly friends through forests and meadows and valleys and glens. After hours of playing, she looked down with a glance.

"Mon dieu!" cried Penelope, "this isn't France!" Her eyes filled with tears and she stopped in her track. "I don't know where I am or how I'll get back!" The butterflies circled the tearful young pup. "We're in Spain," they explained, "don't worry, cheer up!" Penelope sighed, "but I'm hungry," she said. "Follow us," said her friends, "there's a café ahead."

They drank chocoláte and split a fried churro, then asked the way home from a nice Spanish burro. "It's that way," he said, with a hoof pointed north. "But the sun's almost gone so you'd better set forth." Happy back home with her blanket that night, Penelope smiled and turned out the light.
