The perfect recipe for finely crafted furniture...

How Bespoke Pine n Oak can turn your ideas into beautiful reality

When Tony and Janet Harding of Friday Bridge wanted to create a fabulous family kitchen it wasn't just a case of removing and replacing the existing units.

"We wanted to retain some elements of the old kitchen," says Tony, "but we also wanted to add wall cupboards and incorporate a double oven. We wanted a display cabinet and new worktops – and we wanted it all to match. It was a lot more involved than simply building a new kitchen from scratch."

Armed with a few rudimentary sketches, the couple found the answer to their dreams with Kevin Berry and Carl Ingram at Bespoke Pine n Oak in King's Lynn, who've built a formidable reputation for individually designed, high quality and traditionally handcrafted furniture.

"We hadn't thought too much about the practical side of our plans," says

Janet, "but Carl was amazingly talented at taking our very rough ideas and making them work."

Indeed, nothing was too much trouble for Bespoke Pine n Oak, who visited the Hardings at home, precisely measuring every corner and getting a feel for the space; 'borrowed' their new oven to ensure it complemented the new units and was at exactly the right height; and invited Tony and Janet to their on-site workshop to see the work in progress.

"Even though it was at the bare wood stage we could see the kitchen was going to be something special," says Tony. "It was clearly being made with real skill and a lot of attention to detail."

That commitment to ensuring total customer satisfaction even continued after the kitchen was finished.

"We'd specified wooden shelves for the display cabinet," says Janet, "but we realised they prevented the light from filtering through the unit. It was our fault really, but Carl was more than happy to replace them with glass shelves."

The result is a truly stunning and handcrafted kitchen that meets (and exceeds) everything the Hardings were looking for.

"We're totally delighted with it," says Tony. "Bespoke Pine n Oak were absolutely brilliant and we can't speak highly enough of them and their work."

From a single bookshelf to a complete kitchen, Bespoke Pine n Oak can create the furniture you've been looking for. In fact, if you can draw it, they can make it!
