

Sue Sally Hale
American Polo Pioneer
(1937-2003)

Sue Sally Hale was a polo pioneer who is credited with breaking American polo's sex barrier.

By the time she had turned 11 years old she knew what she wanted to be, "a bronc buster or a polo player". The year was 1949. Unfortunately for Sue Sally there was no organized polo for women after WWII and women weren't allowed to join the all men's United States Polo Association (USPA). Thus, began her epic journey from hitting rocks across carved out lots in the Hollywood hills all the way to Polo's Hall of Fame.

Sue Sally started polo at the Riviera Polo & Country Club in Pacific Palisades, California in the late 1940s under the tutelage of some of the greatest polo players of the day. Disguising herself as a man, she persevered when she was neither wanted nor accepted, her chosen sport certainly not prepared for her. Going where no woman had gone before, Sue Sally played Sunday polo with the men.

Playing polo up and down the west coast with and against such legendary players as LeBlanc, Coulter, Skene, Linfoot, Conant, Atkinson, Jason, Wooten, Graber, Murray and Howden, she campaigned for more than 20 years to be included in the United States Polo Association.

In January of 1972, Sue Sally Hale was accepted as a playing member of the USPA, finally eligible to play in officially sanctioned polo tournaments. She became the top American woman player of her era, a legend in her own time.

For the next 30 years, she continued to share her enthusiasm and love for the game with everyone she encountered hoping more people would take up the sport she loved. Sue Sally pushed the boundaries of what was possible, accepted or allowed. She crisscrossed the country opening doors, creating opportunities and propelling the sport of polo forward inspiring generations who followed and in the process was crowned polo's "Grande Dame".

Sue Sally's career in polo spanned more than fifty years. She achieved many historic firsts for women in polo, all the while mentoring and reinforcing the positive role of women as professional players, instructors, managers and organizers in polo. Named one of "20 Who Left Their Mark, A Tribute To Those Whose Unique Contributions Shaped American Polo" her accomplishments and contributions to polo were recognized next to such polo legends as: Harry Payne Whitney, James Gordon Bennett, Devereaux Milburn, Cecil Smith, Thomas Hitchcock Jr., John T Oxley, Paul Butler, Northrup Knox, Dr, William (Billy) Linfoot, and Carlton Beal.

In addition to her passion for polo, Sue Sally was a competitor, instructor and mentor in several equine disciplines, the mother of five children (Brook, Stormie, Dawn, Sunset & Trails), a volunteer fireman, an EMT, a community activist, an artist, an author and an award winning poet.

Sue Sally has been featured in books, television shows and more than 400 newspaper and magazine articles over her career including: The New York Times, The Los Angeles Times, The Chicago Tribune, San Francisco Chronicle, Los Angeles Herald Examiner, Tulsa World News, Dallas Morning News, The Guardian, San Jose Mercury News, Jackson Hole News, The Atlanta Journal-Constitution, Tahoe Extreme, Boca Raton News, Honolulu Star, Hollywood Reporter, Flight Jacket, Sports Illustrated, Time Magazine, The Robb Report, Town & Country Magazine, Women Sports Magazine, Polo Magazine, Chronicle of the Horse, Polo Players Edition, Spur Magazine, Sidelines, Polo News, The Polo Times, PQ, Polo International, Where Women Dare, Women Athletes Who Rule (The 101 Stars Every Fan Needs to Know), 50 Fearless Athletes Who Play to Win, The Book of Heroines and now an Amazon Best Seller book about her life, "Polo's Grande Dame".
