Lori Drouin has participated in competition obedience for 45 years, beginning as a junior handler in a summer beginner class that turned in to a life-long passion. She has enjoyed the evolution of dog training toward more motivational training, and embraces the philosophy of being as nice as any dog will allow, while using measured levels of conditioned guidance judiciously to help clarify information to dogs, and inspire greater reliability and consistent cooperation. Her goal is to teach dogs what to do, how to do it, and the virtues of cooperation, with clarity, consistency and care, and empower dogs to do their best.

Lori was director of training for Oakland DTC for 10 years, and taught all levels of classes, and learned a great deal from helping people achieve their dreams with a wide variety of breeds, including Siberian Huskies, St. Bernards, Pharaoh Hounds, Basenjis, Min Pins, and even a few Goldens and Shelties.

She has personally trained 1 Sheltie to CDX, 6 Shelties to UD, and 2 OTCh titles and a UDX3, 2 Norwegian Elkhounds to CDX and one UD, and one Dalmatian to a CD.

Now living in Fall River Mills, CA, Lori continues to teach monthly classes at ODTC, does private coaching, and enjoys the opportunity to meet fellow obedience enthusiasts at trials and seminars. Read more about Lori on her website at: <http://loridrouin.webs.com>.
