

SIETAR Delhi invites you all to

Sietar Delhi Learning Event on Tuesday, 11th March 2014

at AFS Intercultural Programs, New Delhi.

How do we create Cross-Cultural Awareness in Education?

Sometimes, it is a bit like learning new languages, acquiring new skills and aptitudes: the later in life having to adapt to more complex, or even different patterns happens, the more difficult the experience becomes. Adaption is needs-based and reactive, rather than curiosity-based and proactive.

Curiosity and awareness about other organizational, cultural, behavioral, and communicative patterns can be fun to explore. So, how do we induct cross-cultural awareness into a curriculum catering to an age and interest group that has little or no actual experiential exposure to the topic?

Agenda:

- Short presentation about Sietar Delhi (Society for Intercultural Education, Training and Research) and future events.
- Cross-Cultural Awareness in Education by Sujata Banerjee, Management Across Cultures (Germany and Pune). Sujata Banerjee has vast experience within the intercultural field, and she is a long time supporter of SIETAR India.
- Sujata will present different approaches and methodologies to integrating Cross Cultural Competence into B School Curricula in Germany and India, taking a sometimes critical approach to implied agendas or reductionist tendencies.
Which approach works best for which interest group? Best Practices and Worst Cases will be shared with the audience in order to spark an engaged discussion on what is increasingly becoming an area of professional interest for interculturalists across the Globe.
- Networking time
