CLERGY COLUMN

This is a two-week bulletin.

Let us welcome with joyous hearts the glorious news that we have a shepherd for our diocese! I have known Bishop Cozzens as a spiritual father since 2006, and as a true friend and brother since my ordination to the priesthood. He was a professor of Sacramental Theology at Saint Paul Seminary, and I was one of his students there. In my wildest dreams I never thought he would be my bishop, and I believe he is, without question, the very best choice to be our bishop. I could not think of anyone better to lead us out of these tumultuous years and closer to Our Blessed Lord.

Since All Saints Day falls on a Monday this year, it is not Holy Day of Obligation this year. I will offer only one Mass at 7:00 p.m. in Oklee on Monday, November 1. Correspondingly, there will be only one Mass for All Souls Day, also in Oklee at 7:00 p.m. Please don't forget to make a visit to a cemetery on November 2nd to pray for the Faithful Departed.

A Description of Bishop Cozzens' Coat of Arms

Bishop Andrew Cozzens' coat of arms is divided into four sections by the St. Andrew Cross. Like his patron, St. Andrew, Bishop Cozzens wishes his entire life to be conformed to Christ through laying down his life for Christ's bride, the Church (Ephesians 5:25-26).

At the center of the cross is the Sacred Heart of Jesus, representing Bishop Cozzens' desire to make present through his episcopal ministry the love, mercy and healing that flow from the pierced heart of Christ for the salvation of the world. To the left of the shield is the Immaculate Heart of Mary, to whom Bishop Cozzens entrusts his life and ministry as a bishop. Sharing with her in the sufferings of discipleship (represented by the sword in her heart), he hopes to share in the fruitfulness that flows from this suffering (represented by the roses around her heart). To the right of the shield is the heart of St. Joseph, with a staff of lilies representing his purity and his identity as guardian of the Holy Family. Like St. Joseph, Bishop Cozzens takes the Church as his bride in chaste love and seeks to love all her children with a father's compassionate and steadfast heart. St. Joseph is also known as "protector of virgins," a title which reflects Bishop Cozzens' deep love and gratitude for consecrated religious.

The top or "chief" of the shield hails a landscape of mountains representing Bishop Cozzens' native state of Colorado, where he learned to climb mountains, as well as the call of every Christian to seek ever-greater heights in the spiritual life.

At the base is a field of blue and white waves taken from the coat of arms of the Archdiocese of St. Paul and Minneapolis, in which he was ordained to the priesthood. The water reminds us of the new life of baptism, which is the beginning of every Christian's life in Christ's love.

Around the border of the shield is seen a three-ply cord, which represents the importance that Bishop Cozzens attaches to priestly fraternity, as well as the gratitude he has for the fraternal life he has shared in the Companions of Christ, a fraternity of diocesan priests in the Archdiocese of St. Paul and Minneapolis and the Archdiocese of Denver. The three-ply cord comes from the Book of Ecclesiastes: "Where a lone man may be overcome, two together can resist. A three-ply cord is not easily broken" (Ecclesiastes 4:12).

Behind the shield is a gold Celtic cross, symbolizing the Irish ancestry of Bishop Cozzens. The five red stones set within the center of the cross represent the five wounds of Christ. As St. Peter tells us, "By his wounds you have been healed" (1 Peter 2:24). Through these wounds, Bishop Cozzens desires to make known Christ's healing love.

Bishop Cozzens has chosen as his motto, "Praebe nobis cor tuum," which translates, "Give us your heart." The motto is taken from the final line of a prayer by St. Louis de Montfort to Our Lady. This prayer was dear to both Blessed John Paul II ("Totus tuus" — the first line of the prayer) and Blessed Mother Teresa of Calcutta ("Praebe nobis cor tuum" — the last line of the prayer), to whom Bishop Cozzens has a special devotion. This motto expresses his desire to be united with the heart of Jesus through the heart of Mary and to lead others to this same union.

Weekly Reflections

“And Jesus said to him, ‘Go your way; your faith has made you well.’ And immediately he received his sight and followed him on the way.” (Mark 10:52)

Faith is believing in something even though you may not be able to physically see it. Many people think that miracles don't happen anymore. This is hard, but try to focus on the positive and not the negative things in your life. When you focus on your blessings instead of your hardships, miracles will seem common. You will see God's active presence in your daily life. You will begin to develop an attitude of gratitude.
