"Specializing in assessment and mitigation strategies for procurement integrity to reduce the risk of financial and reputation losses"

SHERYL D. GOODMAN
PRESIDENT

Recognized as a national expert in establishing and re-engineering city/county/state government operations, Sheryl has built her career on creating and improving government programs that directly impact the public and private sectors. She earned a Bachelor's degree in Criminology and a Master's degree in Public Administration from The Florida State University. She currently holds certifications as an Inspector General and Inspector General Investigator. In addition, she was formerly a certified police officer and public assistance fraud investigator.

Earlier in her career, Sheryl was a Performance Auditor and Senior Investigator for the Florida Auditor General's Office and the Director for Pinellas County Department of Consumer Protection responsible for mediating consumer business disputes, regulatory licensing and enforcement, and investigating all aspects of economic crimes for criminal prosecution.

As Inspector General for the Florida Department of Children and Families, Sheryl championed legislation to ensure caseworkers who falsified information about visiting the children under the state's care would be charged with a felony. In 2007, Sheryl's office became the first Office of Inspector General (OIG) to receive the Commission for Florida Law Enforcement Accreditation, Inc.'s Inspector General Accreditation.

Taking on an extraordinary challenge of her career, in 2010, Sheryl became the first Inspector General for Palm Beach County; a county commonly referred to by the nation as "Corruption County". Creating the office from scratch, in the most difficult of circumstances, Sheryl and her team, within the first four years, questioned, identified and cost avoided over $30 million; covering 41 separate jurisdictions. In 2014, Sheryl became an Inspector General Advisor with the City of Jacksonville where she built the foundation of the Office and help hire the initial staff to include the Inspector General.

Sheryl is a frequent speaker/trainer on her experiences in fighting corruption at the state and local level in the United States, International Law Institute and the Association of Certified Fraud Examiners. She briefs in the international community to include the Iraqi Inspectors General, members of the Indonesia government, and several Ministries and Parliaments within East Africa, East Asia, and North America.

Throughout her 30-year government career, Sheryl has received several awards for streamlining business processes, innovation and technology and enterprise system development and governance. She has held several elected positions to include President of the Florida Chapter of Inspectors General, President of the National Association of Consumer Agency Administrators and Vice President of the National Association of Inspectors General.

Today, Sheryl is the President and co-founder of the Procurement Integrity Consulting Services, LLC; a company specializing in developing, assessing, and structuring strategies within procurement operations to assure contracting integrity. The company also assists clients in identifying and mitigating their inherent risk to procurement fraud and abuse. As the co-designer of the PICS Procurement Integrity Control System®, this proprietary model helps organizations safeguard their reputation; reduces financial losses; and minimizes opportunities for litigation related to procurement fraud and abuse. The company also provides customized training on the most prevalent procurement schemes of fraud and abuse in today's contracting along with the most successful proactive and reactive protections against those same threats. Currently, Sheryl is working with the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime as their expert on Whistleblower Protection legislation and program operations. She has also co-published articles in professional association magazines on subjects related to the Contract Fraud and Abuse Risk Examination, Commitment to Procurement Integrity, Five Personality Faces of Procurement Fraud Risk, and Procurement Predicament.
