CONTEST RULES

Our contest is an open contest. You must compete in the age group at the age you will be July 31, 2020. If you win, you must be willing to attend all performances of the Hooper Tomato Days Rodeo over Labor Day weekend, or have an approved written excuse from the Jr. Queen Coordinator. You must also commit to helping with next year's contest. If you win this year, and want to compete next year, you will have to advance in the age groups to be eligible to compete.

DRESS CODE

Dress for personality and appearance will be western traditional denim or colored denim jeans, with a long-sleeved western blouse, any color, any fabric, western hat, belt and boots. Vests and matching saddle blanket are optional. Please be modest. Age-appropriate sheer fabric is acceptable.

Dress for horsemanship will be in the same attire as used for personality and appearance. However, it will be optional for those riding their horsemanship pattern first to have the opportunity to be judged in the appearance category in a clean pair of jeans. You may, therefore, change into a clean pair of jeans that are the same color, same style and same brand used during the horsemanship portion. Judges will be made aware that you had already competed in your jeans on your horse.

A short modeling pattern will be requested and done according to the contestant's preference during personality and appearance.

Each contestant will be given a number to wear on her left leg during the duration of the contest.

See horsemanship pattern assigned to the different age groups. If you have questions, please call.
