Speech and Language Services

Our Speech-Language Pathologists

Cooper speech-language pathologists are specialists in human communication. They identify, assess and provide treatment for individuals with speech, language, voice, cognitive/communication and swallowing disorders. Speech therapy is designed to help patients regain and increase their ability to communicate through speech. People of all ages – from young children to those in their senior years – may need speech therapy for a variety of reasons, ranging from delayed speech in youngsters to impaired speech in adults who have suffered a stroke.

Cooper's speech-language pathologists are licensed and professionally trained to evaluate and remediate individualized care. They hold either master's or doctoral degrees and have earned the Certificate of Clinical Competence (CCC) in the appropriate area of practice granted by the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association.

Our Speech and Language Program

The Speech and Language Program of Cooper University Health Care provides comprehensive services to patients of all ages from newborns to senior citizens. Our staff also participates in the Regional Cleft Palate/Craniofacial Program, Child Development Center, Stroke Program and in-service programs for the public and health care professionals.

Speech Pathology

- Speech and language evaluations and treatment of developmental and acquired disorders
- Clinical evaluations and treatment of swallowing disorders, pre-feeding and feeding evaluations
- Modified barium swallowing studies (video fluoroscopy) in conjunction with members of our Radiology staff
- Voice evaluations and treatment using the Kay Elemetrics Visipitch Program

Appointments and Cost of Service

Most services require a referral from a primary care physician. The cost of an evaluation or therapy may be covered by Medicare, Medicaid, HMOs or conventional insurance plans. If individuals do not qualify for any of these programs, an evaluation may be provided on a free or reduced cost basis depending upon household income and ability to pay. Financial counseling is available to help determine eligibility.

ABOUT OUR REHABILITATION THERAPY PRACTICE

Fox is a private practice of full-time physical, occupational, and speech therapists. Fox was built on the novel foundation of Geriatric House Calls™, and throughout its growth, the practice has stayed true to its mission of rehabilitating lives by believing in the strength of people. Diversification has included outpatient clinics, post acute care, and pediatric centers with in home therapy. Our clinicians provide clinically excellent care and are given the autonomy they need to rehabilitate lives through evidence-based interventions and best practice guidelines.

Within Fox, our culture is one of respect and hard work. We are a growing organization, with a spirit of innovation that inspires our employees. Our private practice is built around support systems that provide physical, occupational, and speech-language therapists the tools they need to succeed while achieving clinical excellence and professional career fulfillment.

It is our philosophy that employees at all levels are equally important to the success of Fox. At Fox, it is this philosophy and our unique culture that create a supportive atmosphere where employees are recognized for their contributions.

Our highlights:

- We provide physical, occupational, and speech therapy.
- We treat patients with physical and cognitive impairments compassionately and with positive outcomes.
- We offer Fox Better Living™ — programs such as Falls Risk Reduction, Community-Based Exercise, and In-Home Safety Assessment.
- We assess patients with evidence-based functional outcome measures.
- We partner and collaborate with academic institutions such as Temple University, Thomas Jefferson University, New York University, and Arcadia University, for continuing education in physical therapy, occupational therapy, and speech-language pathology.
- We recognize our responsibility to contribute to our professional body of knowledge through research and provide many opportunities for our clinicians to do so.
- We celebrate the commitment and dedication of our staff, including many founding clinicians who are still with us today.
- We believe in the power of exercise to restore and in its ability to rehabilitate lives.
