

Stein - GREEN-stein: an appealing proposition for GPUSA.

The Constitution allows it; everyone would be better off with it, except perhaps Donald Trump.

It's a succession of five VPs over eight years that puts more people fervently on the campaign trail for Jill Stein. A succession ideally places Howie Hawkins last (primed to the presidency in 2024), and each of the preceding VPs, if Jill is elected, are contractually obligated to resign.

Order here is less important than the principle of multiple VPs. Only one can appear on the ballot, but all can stand simultaneously. The suggested progression:

Mark Greenstein	10 - 12 months
Bernie Sanders	20 - 24 months
Ralph Nader	20 - 24 months
Ron Paul / Carla Howell	20 - 24 months
Howie Hawkins	12 - 26 months

We expect that Senator Sanders will "come clean" of the Democrat Party by January 2018 and eagerly serve as Vice President. The Democrat establishment will disappoint, and millions will cheer him on to take the appointment and be Jill Stein's VP.

Notice the flexibility here. While liberty-minded Democrat Mark Greenstein will appeal to some Democrats and some Republicans, the campaign is in reality Stein - Sanders. Greenstein is a placeholder -- true progressives will put up with him in a nearly-powerless-post for 10 - 12 months while Sanders gets ready.

Notice the beauty here. An assertive-but-selfless Jill Stein can for all intents-and purposes be a presidential placeholder for Bernie Sanders AND president for 2.5 - 3 years! She can announce her own term limit ("3 and out!") so voters know they are getting Bernie Sanders after all, in late 2019.

Jill, the Green Party, and millions will again "Feel the Bern!" Nothing could break the two-party hegemony better than the ascent of Bernie Sanders with the Green Party.

With Bernie Sanders, the Green Party then actually has a chance of WINNING. He and Jill are more passionate, more intelligent, and carry more impact than any pair of "Old Party" candidates. Drafting Bernie elevates the possibility of a Conservative break with the Republicans, creating a 5-way race (including Libertarians). Even in a 4-way race, it takes just 35% to win ALL of a state's delegates. With a Conservative in the race, Trump will likely finish FOURTH, with zero electoral votes.

To see the bountiful electoral numbers with Bernie prominent in a 4-way race, view www.weresist.us.

To see more on "who is Mark Greenstein?" visit www.weresist.us or www.stewartforliberty.com. He agrees with 98% of the Party's expressed Tenets. His liberty-minded perspective embraces progressive policies and Green Party principles so long as the government is not coercing individuals. As such, he gives progressives and Greens a deal no other leader will attain. In the unlikely event of his ascent to President, Mr. Greenstein will adhere to a 12 month limit as well, with a legal obligation to resign by at latest January 2019. He plans to run for Governor of Connecticut; if successful that is a January 2019 inauguration. Lose or win, the Green Party will be launching its first prominent candidate for governor.
