One more thing

Though you probably got most of the poem, we bet you didn't get this one.
Or did you?

Les Deux Maestros

by Geo Wesley

Your empty chairs and empty tables,
Tabula rasa starts every day.
It used to be Ol' Brown and Price, but
Now everyone comes if they can pay
Cash -the coins of the realm- they must be round,
Just like the change, which comes from within.
Let's talk, but no sweets and no music,
Unless you count the banter among friends:
Re: a legal charade, the money trade,
Or since near the Hall, politic parades.

"Hail to the chef," borne from the 80s.
Lettuce come together, as the calendar shows
On Tuesday finds Shin soup being served.
Or is it each day? No matter, it goes.
Whether the weather is rain or shine,
This is the city where you believe.
And if walls could talk, what would they say?
Carpe diem. And for those that follow, leave
Your empty chairs and empty tables.

When Mr. Geo Wesley traveled to Paris, he went to one of their famous cafes - Les Deux Magots. When he saw the two Asian figurines in the cafe, he was inspired to write this beautiful poem for us, hence the title.
