

Sunday Meditation

Anything that creates a distance between us and God--whether sin, neglect, or any other thing--robs us of peace, happiness and confidence towards God. I'm sure we've all felt ourselves strangely out of sorts, unhappy; and, upon reflection, we realized that we were feeling estranged from the Father. A sense of the nearness and favor of Jesus is the sovereign remedy for all ills. What trouble or pain cannot be borne if Christ is near us, assuring us of His love and care? James gives us this helpful advice and promise: "Come near to God, and He will come near to you." We're invited to approach the throne of grace in time of need (Heb 4:16). But better, we can live in His presence, "in the secret place of the Most High," where is promised every desirable blessing. (Ps 91:1ff.). For "In His presence is fullness of joy" (Ps. 16:11).
