Nikon EDG VR Spotting Scope

This scope is so new that no one in the U.S. has actually seen one yet! Nikon has just announced the most advanced spotting scope ever produced, the EDG VR with vibration reduction (VR). The vibration that can be so detrimental in high magnification spotting scopes disappears with the push of a button. The unit is powered by four AA batteries and lasts up to 31 hours and it is actually still waterproof! Only a few units will even be available this year but if you order fast you might just get one.

Unfortunately the EDG VR is so new that we do not have a price, but if you call the Outdoorsmans at 1-800-291-8065 they will be happy to help you place an order.

Outdoorsmans Fanny Pack

I have tried dozens of fanny packs over the years and I've always been disappointed. They were either too small and heavy relative to their carrying capacity or they lacked the support to keep the pack from flopping up and down. I came to the conclusion that while the perfect fanny pack was a dream until I used the new Outdoorsmans Fanny Pack and changed my mind.

A group of us hiked the Grand Canyon and were able to carry everything needed and comfortably. Available in Max-1 Camo or red (with Wilderness Athlete logo) for under $125.
