Holidays seem so much happier when there are little children in the home. Children sense the anticipation and excitement even though they may not understand what it's all about. And we want to make the holidays as much fun as possible for our children.

Easter is a special holiday for Christians, but the secular world has their own idea on how to celebrate. Christians retell the story of Jesus suffering and death, Jesus' resurrection and the joyous surprise Jesus' followers had when they realized Jesus had indeed come back to life. The secular world focuses on the Easter bunny and what surprises will be found in the eggs he hides and the Easter baskets he brings.

We can't ignore what the children see and hear all around them, but we can make Christ the primary focus in our homes. We'll tell and retell the story of Jesus and all He did for us to make it possible for us to be God's loved and forgiven people.

As we dye eggs and plan for the traditional Easter egg hunt, we can use the colors to tell the story of Easter:

Red is for the blood He gave; Green is for the grass God made.

Yellow is for the sun so bright; Orange is for the sky as it gets night.

Black is for the sins we made; White is for the grace God gave.

Purple is for Jesus' hour of sorrow; Pink is for our Easter tomorrow.

As we hunt for the hidden Easter eggs and enjoy the thrill of finding them, we can tell of Mary's joy when she found out Jesus was alive.

When preparing Easter baskets, include items (e.g., books or games) that tell of Jesus' victory over sin and death. Plan to attend worship services and join fellow worshipers as we share the ancient Easter greeting "Christ is risen. He is risen indeed! Alleluia."

May God fill you and your family with the true joy and excitement of Easter.

Routines for learning

When parents get involved in learning, children are more successful. Help your children get off to a good start in school by creating habits like these at home:

- Remind your children of rules such as “reading before play or television.” This shows them that learning is a top priority. Also, give them a comfortable place to read or draw without distraction.
- Make time each day to look over school papers with your child. Be on the lookout for notes from their teachers, and mark important dates on the calendar.
- Sharing at dinnertime is an activity that can go beyond passing the platter. Ask your children to think of one new thing they learned during the day. It might spark an interesting conversation among everyone at the table

Remember, YOU the parents are the key to your child’s success in kindergarten, early elementary school and further! Set up the good habits and routines now! The routines you put in place now will be the routines they continue with as they get older and more responsible for their own education.

Thursday, May 24—YES celebration (Your Extra Special end of year celebration) 10:00am. Children are dismissed after the program. Should take no more than one hour. Mark your calendars and get time off work!!!

Questions from Kids

If I am God's child, then why doesn't He keep me from being sick or hurt here on earth?

And God will wipe away every tear from their eyes; there shall be no more death, nor sorrow, nor crying. There shall be no more pain, for the former things have passed away (Revelation 21:4)

We often ask questions like: "Why am I sick?" "Why do people have to die?" "Why did my pet die?" Well, this is not the way God created the world to be. You see, after God created everything in the universe, He said it was all very good. If the world had stayed this way, nothing bad would ever have happened. But God created Adam with the ability to choose right and wrong. And even though Adam enjoyed everything in the Garden, and was even the head over all the earth, he still chose to do something terribly wrong. He chose to disobey God. Well, God made it clear that if Adam disobeyed Him by eating the fruit from the tree, then he would die. From that very first sin, all living things would have to die.

Sickness is part of dying. And even when you get sick and then get well again, it is still a reminder that the world is no longer "very good," the way God made it, because we all sin against God everyday. But there is great news! If you are God's child and believe in Jesus Christ, the Bible says there will one day be a place that is "very good" again; a place without the sickness and death that comes because of sin.
