“I am no longer a victim.”

“Carrie Simon House has been a foundation in my life over the past year that has fueled a new sense of responsibility, ambition and independence in me. I was a shell of victimization coming into the program, unsure of what card life would deal me next. Since the Carrie Simon House I have cultivated work experience which prompted my belief to not settle for climbing up the work ladder. I entered college after being out of school for two years while I raised my daughter. I am now finishing up my last of semesters at Montgomery College with a 3.0 GPA, and well on my way to Howard University where I will double major in Business Marketing and Computer Information Systems. Through the skills I’ve learned by being in the Carrie Simon House I am a better woman, mother, student, and most importantly, I am no longer a victim.”
