July 3, 2016
Fourteenth Sunday in Ordinary Time
Luke 10:1-12, 17-20

“Jesus appointed seventy-two others whom he sent ahead of him in pairs to every town he intended to visit.”

When the twelve returned and reported what they had done in his name, Jesus began to prepare them for the reaction of the Roman and Jewish leaders. He spent time with them in prayer, was transformed before them and attracted thousands whom he fed with fish, bread and spiritual food. He then appointed seventy-two others to go in pairs to towns he intended to visit. They were to take no money, no provisions and no sandals. They were to rely on the response of the people who received them in peace and to whom they preached and healed, physically and spiritually. They went in pairs, some possibly as married couples, and did as Jesus instructed. They returned with reports of performing great deeds and realized that they did not need a money bag, or sack with their possessions or even sandals, to do great things in the name of Jesus. Through the twelve, and then the seventy-two, Jesus is teaching us that faith in God and the truth of His message is all we need to do great things for others. Do we have such faith?
