Wesleyan Methodists

1729 Founded by John & Charles Wesley, both students at Oxford who formed a society known as The Holy Club. Because of their methodical study the group became known as Methodists.

Later John Wesley toured the country preaching in the open air and meeting houses were opened 1795 The intention was to provide additional meetings to those of the established church. The movement later split into various groups including:

Primitive Methodists

1807 Camp meeting led by Hugh Bourne (1772-1852) at Mow Cop
He continued camp meetings despite disapproval of conference and was expelled from Bursham Circuit

Sept 1810 William Clowes (1780-1851) expelled from Tunstall circuit

1812 Clowesites and camp meeting methodists merged and built a chapel at Tunstall forming the Society of Primitive Methodists

Bryanites

1817 William O'Bryan started a revival in Cornwall and North Devon which developed into Bible Christians

Some of the sects combined to form the United Methodists and later all three re-united under the banner of Methodists. There are still a few independent chapels throughout the country.

Rev Dr Thomas Coke, 9/10/1747-3/51814

- 1778      Joined the Methodist Connexion
- 24 Sep 1786      Embarked from Gravesend for America, on 30th due to 'contrary' winds sheltered at Isle of Wight and spent 3 days at Portsmouth. Preached on Sunday morning, in the evening preached to a multitude in the open air on the common and again on Monday evening.
- Dec 1813      Dr Coke sailed from Portsmouth with his first band of Wesleyan missionaries for the Far East. Dr Coke met his fellow missionaries at the Bush Hotel, Southsea, and, preached his last sermon in Daniel Street Chapel. On Dec 30th the Party left the house of John Keet, now occupied by Messrs Lancaster & Sons [Probably 5 Half Moon Street where John Keet was later listed as an outfitter, 1830, Lancaster are listed at 2 Half Moon Street, 1886], near the Hard at Portsea and embarked on the Lady Melville and the Cabalva, and in a few weeks they commenced work in Ceylon. (Gates History of Portsmouth)
- Two Indianmen, the Cabalva, Captain Birch and Lady Melville, Captain Lockner, sailed from Gravesend to Portsmouth. Dr Coke was entertained by Mr Webb, snr. He occupied Portsmouth Pulpits on the last two Sundays before departure. The final service held at St Peters on the Psalm Ethiopia shall soon stretch out her hands to God. The missionaries met at the house of Mr Keet before embarking on 30th Dec. Dr Coke sailed in the Cabalva which left from St Helen's roads on 31 Dec 1813. (The Life of Rev Thomas Coke, Etheridge)

The Bush Hotel was bombed and a block of flats built on the site. The building already has a blue plaque for Conan Doyle so might preclude another plaque on the same building.

Daniel Street Methodist Chapel, St Peters, was absorbed by a brewery but did survive in some form until 1990 when it was demolished.

Mr Keets house/shop was on the side of Half Moon Street that no longer exists, the nearest building would be the Ship and Castle on the Hard/Half Moon Street.
