A New Year and New Opportunities

Matt Maw, NSBEA President

The new school year is upon us and with every new school year comes new opportunities. New opportunities for reflection, making new goals, and trying something new. These opportunities come at the start of each year, each semester, and each and every day and are one of my favorite things about our profession. Plato said, “The beginning is the most important part of the work.” We are blessed in our profession to have so many beginnings and opportunities to start Something New.

What has your mindset been as you have started anew? Shortly before the new school year started, I was asked to think about my mindset and identify a quote that it best represented. I immediately thought back to the Helen Keller quote that I shared at our banquet in June, “Alone we can do so little; together we can do so much.” I have made this quote a focal point for my mindset this year, have posted it in my workplace, and have shared with colleagues, students, and parents. It is with this mindset that I think back to all of the new opportunities we have and how much more we can do with them through collaboration with others.

Many of us participated in professional development throughout the summer and have come up with lots of ideas and innovative teaching strategies to use with our classes. Now is the time to put those ideas into action and continue to challenge ourselves to how we can continue to improve.

NSBEA provides so many opportunities to help us start Something New and collaborate with our colleagues statewide. We can do so much together through NSBEA. Here are a few ideas:

Join the BMIT ListServe – Be sure you are signed up for the BMIT ListServe to know more about new and opportunities from teachers all across Nebraska.

Connect via Twitter – Follow the #busedu hashtag on Twitter for updates from business teachers nationwide. You can get new ideas and join in celebrating others success. Share what you are doing too and give inspiration and ideas to others!

Recognition – Recognize your fellow colleagues by nominating them for an NSBEA Award. It is never too early to think about who you can nominate. Check the NSBEA website for details and watch for email updates via Constant Contact as we get closer to the deadlines.

NEW: NSBEA Graduate Scholarships – Are you pursuing an advanced degree or taking a graduate class to expand your skills? If so, consider apply for the newly created NSBEA Graduate Scholarships to help cover a portion of your tuition for a semester course. Details and applications are located on the NSBEA website at www.nsbea.org.

NEW: Leadership Development Institute

Stipends – Have you thought about how you can be a leader in business education? Leadership Development Institutes are offered at both the state and regional levels in conjunction with the Nebraska Career Education Conference and Mountain-Plains Business Education Association. The LDI gives you a chance to learn more about our organizations, learn about yourself and your leadership styles, and discover opportunities to serve our members. Stipends are now available to help offset the cost of these conferences and allow you an opportunity to participate in an LDI. Check the NSBEA website for details and applications.

NEW: National Business Education Association Annual Convention Stipend – Do you want an opportunity to attend a national convention all about business education? If so, the NBEA annual convention is a great option. This year's conference is March 27-31, 2018 in Baltimore. NSBEA is now offering a stipend to assist you! Check the NSBEA website for details and applications.

The NSBEA Fall Conference is a great time to re-connect with fellow business teachers, refresh yourself, and add new strategies to your toolbox. This year's conference is being held Saturday, October 28, from 8:00-11:30. Through our partnership with the Nebraska Council on Economic Education, we are proudly hosting this conference at the newly opened Howard L. Hawks Hall, home of the College of Business at the University of Nebraska – Lincoln. Lori Anderson-Stowe and Alex Fakinos are working hard to create new and exciting opportunities for you. You will also get a chance to tour the new College of Business building and learn about the building maximizes collaboration and provides authentic learning opportunities. The College of Business has challenged their students and staff to 'Start Something.' I encourage you to Start Something by attending the NSBEA Fall Conference. Watch for email updates and check out the NSBEA website at www.nsbea.org for more information and online registration.

Keep the new opportunities and goals at the forefront as you continue throughout this year. Continually challenge yourself to do better and remember the words from Helen Keller, "Alone we can do so little; together we can do much." Take advantage of the opportunities to work together though all NSBEA has to offer.
