July 1, 2018

Number 2

To help create Sustainable Nations that support the safety and economic development of their people, minimizing the need for global migration.

CAUSE

- Connecting the Economic and Political Dots of global migration we see that wealthy individuals, corrupt governments, and corporations essentially perpetuate Neo-Colonialism by weakening Democracy – creating dysfunctional countries – in which they can continue to extract resources and exploit people.
- These economic interests benefit through the smokescreen of conflict and destabilization – creating dysfunctional political and social systems – in Central America, Africa and the Middle-east, driving global migration.
- Journalists need to investigate the economic power groups who benefit from wars, civil wars, drug violence, and joblessness that drive global migration.
- Local oligarchs and/or corporations benefit by resource extraction through corrupt governments.
- Wars become a strategy to disrupt development of Democracy to continue extraction of resources and exploitation of people.

EFFECT

- People in dysfunctional countries seek to live in peace and find jobs in more functional counties, the way rural populations within counties move to cities for opportunities and better living conditions.

SOLUTION

- Long-term global sustainability depends on dysfunctional countries becoming functional through developing Democracy.
- Democracy is developed through strengthen the Four Pillars of Democracy: Equity, Representation, Freedom and Justice – the guidelines that help govern how democracy works – and building Democratic Institutions: Education, Free Media, Free and Fair Elections, Courts, Entrepreneurship, Worker Owned Cooperatives and Unions.
- To stop the flow of dysfunctional nations' populations, Centrists – who own 90% of world wealth – need to help dysfunctional countries become functional and strong Democracies.
- To help dysfunctional nations become functional, Centrists, need to actively help the Left and Right meet their needs.
- The United Nations needs to be reorganized to do more to assist with ending international wars and civil wars, prevent drug and gang violence, and create jobs through economic sustainability of nations – thereby reducing the need to migrate for safety and work.
