El Moisés is leaving his mark as a modern-day artist that brings the essence of urban culture and barrio flavor to light. The foundation of his artwork is influenced by the Chicano, American, Native American and Mexican cultures that are reflected in his art pieces. Narrating history, culture, visions and street life, he creates the core elements of a chic, vibrant cornucopia. The artist's distinctive style is bright, intense and exhilarating with countless strokes of brilliant colors flowing in all directions layered on his images, often distorted and surreal, bordered in a bold black outline. Inspired by his roots, El Moisés accents his wood carved frames with a Native American and/or Mexican folk art touch often bringing the artwork outside of the square dimension. El Moisés persistently creates innovative, inimitable work that conveys wit, ethnicity and sincerity. The lively, extraordinary artworks of El Moisés tell stories that are at times humorous, moving and often derived from a current event or a life experience.

El Moisés is currently working on a second book with author Rudolfo Anaya. He is currently in Albuquerque. To keep in touch with El Moisés and his new undertakings please visit his website at www.artedemoises.com
