Demonstration in Glass Bead making

FREE

Barry Stevens

Friday 6-8 P.M.

Vulcan Glass Art Studio is a boutique glass studio recently re-located to Buena Vista, Colorado. Artist Barry Stevens began his glassblowing career in 2008 after apprenticing in the Chicago area. He specializes in lampworking using borosilicate glass and draws much of his inspiration from nature. Techniques he uses include fuming, compression work, implosion, and blown glass art. His work has progressed from compression beads to a full line of pendants, sculptures, paperweights, dishes, vases, carafes, wine stoppers, and marbles. His Buena Vista studio is equipped with several torch stations, full ventilation, oxygen delivery system, glass lathe, and a supply of glass tubing for any lamp-work-in project.

Dirty Pour Pendants

$30.00

Pat Silber

Saturday Morning

Students will learn the "Dirty Pour" acrylic painting technique and then use the dried paint to make unique, one of a kind pendants. All materials will be provided and requires no previous experience or skill level to make several great artistic pendants. Once the student has mastered the dirty pour it can be used on a myriad of projects, not limited to just jewelry. This class will give the student a way to make "one of a kind" pendants that they created from scratch.
