

Dear Jay

Thanks for your warm words about my novels -- and I guess the next thing to say is that I stopped providing quotes about a dozen years ago.

I know what the challenges are for a novelist who's just getting started -- these days, these years. And when I find the time I'll do my best to sneak up on the pages you've sent.

Forget the chicken suit -- and good luck.

Also -- forget the Rossmore address. I don't live there anymore.

Best—
Ann DeLillo
