

Pipe Puzzle: An extremely limited number of these puzzles were crafted some while back, but they proved too simple for an official Stickman design. Robert grows and cures his own tobacco, and this concept was for a box that contained a wooden pipe as a component of its puzzle structure. Turning one foot on this puzzle allows the top compartment to open, after which, flipping it over drops a gravity pin allowing the foot to be removed and a second compartment to be accessed.

The removed wooden foot would normally serve as the pipe, but it would also require a far denser wood than the cedar used in the construction of this box. Robert has shelved this idea until the design can be made more complex and his pipe crafting skills improve.
